LENIN is dead. The all-Russian Soviet announces it officially. This time Lenin is really dead.

History will call him a man remarkable and great—great in power, in persistency, great in extraordinary success. Never has that success been paralleled in all the world's history.

WHAT man except Lenin can you mention, a theorist and dreamer for years, that ever lived to put his theories into practice, with them governing a great nation?

Plato dreamed and wrote of his model republic. The world reads "The Republic" still. It never existed, never could exist.

THE world reads Moore's "Utopia." It's only a name in a book, a name well concocted of two Greek words, meaning "not" and "place" or no place. Never have the utopias of philosophy and literature been made part of real life, before Lenin. They appear in Scandinavian, Celtic and Arab traditions. Some dreamed of an ancient earthly paradise, which they called "Atlantis," a land out in the Atlantic. Columbus and other explorers ended that idea.

ROUSSEAU, Hobbes, Charles Fourier, great intellectual genius, dozens of the great and small, have imagined their "perfect government."

AMONG them all, Lenin, now dead and gone to his place in history, is the only one that lived to try his dream in practice. He imposed his will and theories on one hundred and twenty million human beings, overturned a throne, killing its possessors, took every foot of land in a nation, greater in area than the United States, from the nobility that owned it and gave it to the peasants.

THAT strange man, Lenin, with the concentrated, determined face, whose brother was knouted to death by order of the Czar, and who lived to kill a Czar, will stand out in the world's history, when today's pygmies who think themselves giants shall be forgotten.

THE Lenin dream will not be permanent, of course. As De Mandeville wrote his Fable of the Bees to illustrate the downfall of an artificially manufactured ideal commonwealth, so some writer of the future will write the downfall of Lenin's Marxian-Communist-Bolshevik Utopia.

HUMAN beings are not fit for Communism, while selfishness, individual greed exist within them as the mainsprings of their activity.

Individuals will not be ready for freedom from the stern lash of necessity, as long as that lash is the only power that will drive them to work.

THE old ruling impulses, self-preservation, reproduction and ambition, Nature's three driving powers, will rule again in Russia as everywhere. Intelligence at the top will take more than its share. Dull minds at the bottom will do more than their share of the hard work.

Society also is an evolution. You can no more invent and

BANDITS GET JUDGE'S LIQUOR

LOOT VAULT; FLEE WITH $100,000 WORTH

Hold Employes of Millionaire's Estate at Point of Guns for Eleven Hours

Stockbridge, Jan. 23—Twelve armed and masked bandits in two motor trucks and automobiles, swooped down on the extensive estate of Judge Charles Mayer, New York and Washington millionaire, held up the superintendent and his assistants at gun point and then opened the judge's concrete and stone liquor vault in his villa and stole whiskies and wine valued at $100,000.

They worked through the vault doors with acetylene torches. They worked all last night.

While eight of them labored, four others stood guard over the families of the superintendent and his assistant, in cottages on the estate. In one a mother and child whimpered all night in abject fright.

"Don't be afraid," she was told. "Go ahead and sleep. We aren't going to harm anyone who doesn't make a fuss."

At the other cottage a woman and four children sat mabon with frigid. Bandits there reassured them.

Judge Mayer today offered a reward of $5,000 for capture of the bandits.

BOSTON BANDITS

The bandits are believed to have been from Boston.

One truck, believed to be one of the two laden with stolen liquor, stopped at a garage following the robbery, obtained a supply of gas and roared into the night. Three men manned it.

The robbery was one of the biggest thefts since prohibition became effective.

The liquor was stored in a vault built especially when the Volstead

BROCKTON MAN IS LEFT DYING BY ROBBERS

Shoe Worker's Throat Slashed by Thugs, Who Get $38; Two Suspects Held

Brockton, Jan. 23—William Taylor, fifty-five years old, was slugged beaten, robbed and left to die today by bandits who waylaid him in a lonely spot near School and Centre streets on the East Side.

For two hours he lay slowly bleeding to death. Then, recovering consciousness, he crawled more than a mile to his home at No. 209 Grove street and collapsed on the doorsteps.

His wife, hearing his groans, found him there and shrieked for her daughter, Mary. Both fainted but Taylor's youngest son ran for Ald. Dozier was hurried to Brockton

London, Jan. 23—The new mistress of No. 10 Downing street thinks she will like her new home—even if she did find it rather complicated on her first tour of inspection.

The new mistress of this historic home of the British Premiers is twenty-year-old Isabel MacDonald, eldest daughter of the Labor Premier.

England's Prime Minister is a widower and Miss Isabel has been presiding over his home and over her two little sisters for some years.

Vulture No. 2 Is Also a Clairvoyant, Trance Medium and Real Estate Agent

The American introduces as Vulture No. 2 in its investigation of quack doctors preying on the poor, and ignorant in Greater Boston, J. J. Black of No. 18 Billings road, Norfolk Downs, Quincy.

Black calls himself a doctor. At some time in his career Black may have had claim to the title. The American doubts it, but, as in the case of Dr. Moroney, waives the point. What the American tells of Black today is that—

He has never had a permit to practice medicine in Massachusetts.

Yet he did so, leaving himself liable to criminal prosecution by performing a diagnosis upon one of this newspaper's investigators after which he prescribed and sold him medicine.

Black told a healthy young representative of the American that he had a disease.

Then he went in the cellar of his home and brought back a motley array of "medicines."

One of these was a tin of salve minus a cover. Still minus its cover, Black wrapped it up with the other "curatives" in a piece of dirty newspaper and handed the package to the investigator, assuring the young man that he would most certainly be cured.

Not only did Black prescribe in the manner described, but he demonstrated his conception of a first aid treatment on the alleged patient.

LOOT KRAVIT HOME, BRIGHTON, OF $2,500

Loot worth $2,500, including a fur coat worth $500, silk underwear worth the same amount, two dozen silk shirts and a set of pearl studs valued at $500 were secured by thieves who forced an entrance to the home of Barney Kravit, No. 78 Lloyth road, Brighton, while members of the family were at the theatre.

Police believe one of the thieves was a woman, a Ford coupe containing a man and woman pulling away from the rear of the house as members of the family entered the front door.

Entrance was gained by jimmying a front door. Mrs. Kravit heard the thieves leave by a back door as she walked into the hall. Several handbags were commandeered by the thieves to carry off the loot.

BANDITS SWOOP DOWN ON JUDGE'S ESTATE; SEIZE $100,000 LIQUOR

HOLD EMPLOYES AT GUNPOINT AND BORE INTO VAULT

law went into operation. It was shipped by Judge Magee from New York in a sealed express car. It filled the cars. The whiskies were in casks, the wines in bottles. All were taken.

The vault, built in the cellar of the judge's villa, was of concrete walls six inches thick. The steel doors were of armor plate three inches thick.

A year ago last May an attempt was made to get the liquor but it was frustrated when the superintendent of the estate, William H. Samson fired his revolver into the air and the bandits fled.

The latest robbery began shortly after 6 o'clock last night and ended at 5 o'clock this morning.

GUNMEN APPEAR.

Samson last night sat at the supper table with his wife and four children. Their cottage is not far from the villa. Suddenly the door opened and six masked men stood with guns leveled out before them.

"Don't move," said a leader, in a gentle voice, "just put up your hands."

Samson obeyed. "Guard the woman and children," said the leader pointing to two men. Then he turned to Samson. "You come with us. We won't hurt you unless you make a move then we'll shoot you dead."

Two men stepped to either side of him. He was marched to the villa. Meanwhile, down the road, near the entrance to the estate, which faces the State Highway, six men peeped in on Samson's assistant, John Leary, seated at the supper table with his wife and one child.

MAY BE EX-EMPLOYE.

Leary and his family were ordered to the second floor at gunpoint. Two men were left to guard them. They stood on guard from that time until nearing daylight, when the robbers departed.

It was such a neat businesslike job State police believe it was engineered by someone who once worked on the estate.

When the self-armed leader led in the darkened cellar, Leary was bound and left behind locked doors with his wife and child.

Mrs. Samson and her children were locked up also. All telephone wires had been cut at the bandits' entrance as Samson discovered when at 7 o'clock he freed himself. He ran to a neighbor, obtained an automobile and at the nearest telephone notified Corporal McGrady of the State police at their barracks in East Lee.

Quickly with four men and Edward Stannard, Stockbridge policeman, hurried to the estate and made an examination. Then they notified police of every surrounding town and city within 100 miles.

The State constabulary were ordered out and are now hunting for the trucks which were last reported to have started towards Providence. Heavily armed troopers are scouring the roads in the vicinity of Stockbridge on motorcycles.

At the garage of William Mechling, a month ago, a heavily loaded truck stopped for gas about midnight. After the tank had been filled it sped into the night over the State road known as "Jacob's Ladder," headed, it is believed for Boston.

ONLY TRUCK SEEN.

The truck's contents were covered with canvas. But the load was evident in the weighted down appearance of the machine; also in the power it developed to move.

That was the only truck seen. Its number was not taken if its registration state was in evidence.

The Mayer estate is about half a mile from the village here. Adjoining it is the estate of Mrs. Oscar Lazigi of Beacon street, Boston. Mayer was once a New York judge. During the war he purchased the Canada-American Steamship Line and operated it.

He has not been near his 150-acre place in three or four years. Last summer it was occupied by his two sons, Francis R. and Joan Mayer.

PREDICTED ROBBERY.

But they did not evince the display that their father had been wont to do and rumor had it that the elder Mayer finances were not what they were once.

The judge's action in storing such a big supply of wines and liquor evoked comment at the time of its movement.

Its presence has been commented upon since and many Summer resident volunteered the opinion that sooner or later it would be stolen. Samson was bound and left behind locked doors with his wife and child.

4 ON CRUISER KILLED BY HEAVY SEA

Captain Sparrow and Three Radio Men Swept From the Radio Shack of Tacoma

Washington, Jan. 23.—Four lives were lost in the final wreckage of the cruiser Tacoma at Vera Cruz.

The dead were Captain Herbert G. Sparrow, Edward Thaxter Herrick, radioman, second class; Homer Harry Lussier, radioman, first class, and Soloman Sivin, radioman, third class.

The remainder of the force of forty-eight men, who were with Captain Sparrow, are now on board naval ships in Vera Cruz harbor.

A message from Consul Wood at Vera Cruz says:

"Reports of the Tacoma reports that the captain and three men were killed on the main deck shortly after dark January 21, by being struck by heavy wreckage and seas. The ship was finally abandoned by all hands this morning about 10."

Reports from the Tacoma several days ago showed that she was in communication with shore by radio telephone and it is assumed the captain and his three radio men were probably in the radio "shack" on the main deck, when a heavy sea swept the structure away.

Wife of Tacoma's Commander Was Miss Kidder of Boston

Boston friends of Mrs. Herbert G. Sparrow, formerly Louise Winslow Kidder of this city, were surprised today to hear that Captain Sparrow lost his life when the United States Cruiser Tacoma sank in the Gulf of Mexico outside Vera Cruz harbor.

Mrs. Sparrow is now traveling in Europe. The couple were married in Paris. At that time Mrs. Sparrow announced that she would not be a "navy widow," and when her husband was ordered to sea duty she went abroad and was waiting for him at every port where his ship landed.

Edwin T. Herrick, one of those lost when the U. S. S. Tacoma struck on Blanquilla Reef, was a former Framingham youth. He was the son of Mrs. Mary Herrick, who resides with the rest of her family, including two boys and two girls, at Turners Falls.

Up until a year ago the family resided at No. 94 Franklin street, Framingham. Herrick before joining the navy attended radio school in Boston. He enlisted as a third class radio operator. He had been advanced to radio operator first class.

TROTZKY FIGHTS

Prediction was made here today that Russian Royalists will attempt to take advantage of Lenine's death to agitate for the overturn of the Soviet government at Moscow.

Trotzky has conferred with Leo Kamenev, Budienny and Sapronoff, three powerful leaders of the Communist party.

It was decided to summon the chiefs of the army to meet the Cabinet for a general discussion of measures to be taken if a counter-revolution breaks out.

A CRITICAL PERIOD.

"Lenine's death marks the beginning of the most critical periods of Bolshevism," said the Lokal Anzigor. "Hitherto Bolshevism has been backed up by Lenine's overshadowing personality. Anti-Bolshevists will not remain inactive."

Leon Trotsky.

Alexander Kerensky, former Socialist Premier of Russia, whose government was overthrown by the Bolsheviki, told International News Service today he looked for a counter-revolution in Russia, but not immediately.

"I remain the head of my party (Socialist)," said Kerensky. "The hour is not yet ripe, but I think the day is dawning when a counter-revolution in Russia will succeed.

"Watch the leaders in Moscow cut each other's throats in the coming struggle for Lenine's heritage.

SAFE FOR THE PRESENT.

"There will be no consequences from Lenine's death for the time being. The band of criminals surrounding Lenine might be compared with an orchestra. They were thoroughly trained during the two years that Lenine was disabled by illness. Now they are fully able to play by themselves—for a time at least."

There is a feeling through Central Europe that Lenine's death may prove an event of unfathomable consequence. It will usher in an era of either fresh upheavals or gradual completion of Russia's swing towards capitalism, with the State predominant.

All the newspapers commented at great length upon Lenine and his works. The Vossische Zeitung said:

"There is none left behind powerful and popular enough to take the reins of Slavonic government."

Lost Captain's Wife

MRS. HERBERT G. SPARROW

Mrs. Sparrow, wife of the commander of the U. S. cruiser Tacoma, which sunk off Vera Cruz, carrying Captain Sparrow and two wireless operators with her, was formerly Miss Louise Winslow Kidder of Boston.

TWO EAST BOSTON CHILDREN BITTEN

JUDGE DEFENDS HIS TAKING OF "FRAUD" BABY

Did Right, He Believes, but Fails to Discuss Legal Phases of the Case

Springfield, Jan. 23.—Judge Wallace H. Heath of District Court, who took Sydney Winstone Miller, Mrs. Peach Winstone Miller's "fraud" baby away from her Southbridge home and placed it in the almshouse where it died two days later, today defended his action in a statement issued through Prosecutor John H. Madden.

Judge Heath goes into the facts of the case at great length in his statement and tells of the many stories which were told to him regarding Mrs. Miller, which, he says, led him to believe her insane.

Judge Heath did not go into the legal phase of the case in his statement. He did not discuss his right to take the baby from Mrs. Miller before the custody of the child had been decided in Probate Court.

"I feel that I acted as I should have," he says.

The funeral of the baby was held today from the Spring street home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Miller, his "grandparents."

Mary Moriarty, of Springfield, the unmarried mother of the boy, whose suit for damages against a Springfield man brought about the discovery that young Mr. Miller had falsely registered his birth as that of her own child, was here to join with the Miller family in the funeral.

The Rev. John Wriston, pastor of the Methodist Church, conducted the brief funeral service.

create a new government or society than you could invent or create a new kind of human being.

Each must grow.

BUT apart from all that, Lenin stands out as the first man that ever made of a government theory an actual, living government. Most marvelous of all, he has kept it going, sick or well, year after year, while in all other European countries, except Germany, various governments rose and fell—autocracy of the old school seeing government in Italy and Spain, while the new autocracy held Russia.

LENIN'S power was in his absolute honesty, sincerity, devotion to his own conditions.

One hundred and twenty millions of Russians mourn his death. They trusted him, and they could trust him.

HOW LONG will Soviet Russia last now, especially with Trotzky, Lenin's military right hand, losing his power?

Peasants will fear loss of their lands, taken from nobles and given to them. But other powerful men have been trained under Lenin, and, in years past, in the prisons of the Czar. They may carry on Lenin's experiment for years to come.

DREAMERS, each creating his "Utopia" protesting against the crimes of what we call "civilized" society, with its contrast of unnecessary wealth and hideous unnecessary poverty, do not waste their time though their dreams may not come true.

No good thought or effort is wasted. No sincere attempt, however misguided, to better the condition of human beings, but has its good results.

If it only makes selfishness ashamed to think, or warns power at its top that there is danger at its bottom, it still does good.

LENIN in his Russian experiment has caused more thinking among the rulers and peaceful plutocrats of the world than all the writing ever done, possibly.

Men in power are too busy to read what has been written; they despise what lies on the shelves of libraries. But what is done before their eyes they must see and they take warnings.

IN THIS country, Power chose to shut its eyes, refusing to recognize Russia.

In history will not shut its eye. It will see in Lenin an extraordinary force, one of the great romances, marvels and surprises of all times.

Lenin was a fugitive from the land the Czars, with the mark of a Czar's prisons on him. His brother was put to death in the Czar's own cruel fashion, for thinking what Czars do not approve.

Lenin came back to Russia. He spent last of the Czars in his grave—with quick lime. He avenged his brother. And the thought that the Czars have done out, and that they believed they had suppressed forever, BECAUSE THE GOVERNMENT OF Russia.

Lenin has put down the mighty from their seats.

Fans in Boston and the East Send Flood of Votes; Valentino Is King

New York, Jan. 23.—Rudolph Valentino and Marion Davies—king and queen of the movies.

These two well known stars were named to these high places in popularity as the result of the final count of the great test vote of the theatre owners' Chamber of Commerce.

The titles were fairly earned. The count, made by the theatre owners themselves, was honest and impartial. Valentino received 67,895 votes and Miss Davies 49,910.

The victory of the King and Queen of the movies will be sweet to them because they will realize that it is the absolute expression of the preference of thousands of fans who sent in votes.

TRIUMPHANT FINISH.

Miss Davies' victory came after many of her friends had been forced to conclude that Norma Talmadge was to win the title. Miss Talmadge had been consistently ahead, but in the final counting the mails were flooded with votes from all over the East for Miss Davies.

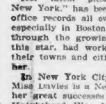
Her latest picture, "Little Old New York," has been breaking box-office records all over the country, especially in Boston, and film fans, through the growing popularity of this star, had worked diligently in their towns and cities for votes for her.

In New York City, the fact that Miss Davies is a New York girl another great success here in "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "Little Old New York," had brought her to the forefront of popular favor by leaps and bounds.

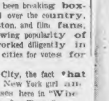
"COME-BACK" FOR RUDOLPH.

Valentino, always a favorite, seemed to catch the popular fancy again after his months of absence from the screen, and to fans apparently sent in their votes for him as their welcome back to the silver sheet.

The coronation of the King and



Thos. Meighan



Norma Talmadge

Queen will take place Thursday night at the fourth annual ball of the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce, at the Hotel Astor.

Following the final counting of the returns at the office of the Motion Picture Owners of New York State, in the Times building, Charles Brandt, president, who has had charge of the ballot committee, issued the following statement:

HARD-FOUGHT VICTORY.

"Miss Davies has earned a hard-fought and well-deserved victory. From the ballots which have been cast the fans seem to be of opinion that no star in the past year has made greater strides than Miss Davies. Her marvelous work in 'When Knighthood Was in Flower' and her recent tremendous success in 'Little Old New York,' which is breaking box-office records throughout our theatres, seems to have captured the public hearts by storm, which has brought her victory.

"Miss Talmadge, too, deserves her popularity.

VALENTINO POPULAR.

"As for the men stars, it seems as though the entire public is on edge to see Rudolph Valentino come back in a new picture and that they have not forgotten him as indicated by his overwhelming number of votes.

The report from the committee was received and heartily approved by Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce.

NEW KING AND QUEEN OF FILMS

MARION DAVIES AND RUDOLPH VALENTINO

Miss Davies forged ahead on the strength of her popularity in "Little Old New York" and "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Valentine had a close race with Thomas Meighan.

ROB, SLASH 3

Hospital, where doctors say he cannot live.

It is the second time within three months that Taylor has been beaten and robbed. According to his wife, he had been in the habit of carrying large sums in his pockets.

Two men, his alleged assailants, were arrested three hours after the man was found. Both are colored. They are Irving Reed and Stewart Wells. They were recently released from Plymouth Jail. Taylor was robbed of $28.

At the hospital Taylor recovered consciousness long enough to describe his assailants. Doctors found one of the arteries in his throat cut. The jugular vein was missed by the narrowest of margins.

A search of the negro district resulted in the arrest of Reed and Wells in a rooming house.

Reed was held in $25,000 and Wells $15,000 for the Grand Jury. They are charged with highway robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon. Murder will be charged if Taylor dies, police said.

Taylor is a mason and was employed by Howard & Son of Brockton and Stone & Webster of Boston. He has four children, three sons and a daughter, and is well known here, having lived in Brockton for many years.

PREMIER'S HOME

the first ladies in the British Empire, made a tour of inspection of the rambling structure that will be her home, only a few minutes after Mr. Baldwin, then still Prime Minister, left the Cabinet meeting to go to Buckingham Palace.

She was shown through the building that contains the offices and living apartments and made a careful if not extended survey of the structure.

"It's rather complicated, but I think I shall like it," was the only comment vouchsafed at the end of the inspection.

Miss MacDonald is a student at a domestic science college in London and yesterday morning attended lectures as usual before going to the Downing street mansion at the invitation of Mrs. Baldwin, who received her and showed her about the premises.

"I have been studying laundry work, housewifery and cooking," Miss MacDonald said, "but I am not fond of housekeeping. I much prefer science and physics."

She explained that although she is to be mistress at No. 10, she would not need to look after the housekeeping because her father had a housekeeper. She has studied domestic economy to qualify herself for social welfare work.

Her other interests include golf, hockey and music. She does not like dancing and is not a great reader.

NEW CABINET IN MOVE TO END R. R. STRIKE

Arthur Henderson Sends Word to Engineers Requesting a Conference on Walkout

London, Jan. 23. (I.N.S.) — England's first labor government, under the stewardship of J. Ramsey MacDonald, began to function today under circumstances which will test its skill and strength to the utmost.

The first meeting of the new government was scheduled for 4 o'clock this afternoon, after the cabinet had received the seals of office.

Arthur Henderson, the new Secretary for Home Affairs, was the first member to begin active duties. He sent word to the striking locomotive engineers and firemen that the government desired an early conference in an effort to settle the strike.

Henderson had not succeeded in arranging a peace conference.

Some of the difficulties under which the Labor government will operate are as follows:

1.—The railway strike.

2.—Bitter antagonism from the Tories and many Liberal members of Commons.

3.—Differences with France over reparations; secession in the Rhineland; war debts and the French blockade of the British zone of military occupation at Cologne.

4.—Widespread unemployment.

5.—Depressed trade.

The new Cabinet was well received by the public. There was some surprise because only seven trade unionists were admitted. Of the twenty-seven members of the government thirteen are practically recent converts to the Labor party.

It is expected Margaret Bondfield, great Britain's foremost woman Laborite, will be included among the under secretaries to be announced this evening.

It was understood that Patrick Hastings has been selected for attorney-general and Emanuel Shinwell, a Scottish Laborite, for secretary of mines.

Kingsley Wood, a Tory, gave notice that he would move a resolution expressing "no confidence" in the labor government when Commons re-assembles February 12.

The ceremony of exchanging seals was carried out at Buckingham Palace without ceremony. Members of the old government merely passed the seals to the new comers. A large crowd outside the palace cheered the Laborites as they emerged.

CREASY IS FREED IN MURDER

Second Trial Ends in His Acquittal of Charge of Killing Teacher-Fiancee

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 23.—William M. Creasy was acquitted today by a jury of murdering Miss Edith Lavoy, a Freeport school teacher, in June, 1922, in her boarding house after their engagement to marry had been broken.

Convicted at the first trial in October, 1922, Creasy won an appeal after nine months in the death house at Sing Sing.

At five minutes after four this morning the jury, after deliberating for almost eight hours, filed into the courtroom and announced that they had reached a verdict.

Creasy, visibly nervous, was brought into the room a minute before Justice Callaghan ascended the bench. As the verdict of "not guilty" was announced he almost collapsed.

KISSED B TEACHER.

As the echo of the foreman's voice died from the silent room Mrs. Mildred Sheldon, school teacher, who had been a roommate of Edith Lavoy and who testified against Creasy as one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution, sprang from her seat and flung herself at the bewildered Creasy. She placed a resounding kiss on his cheek.

"That kiss gave me a greater shock," the acquitted man said later, "than the announcement of the first verdict against me two years ago."

Creasy's family crowded about him, offering their congratulations. They included James Creasy of Belleville, Kentucky, his father, and his sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Payne and Mrs. Hortense Warriner of Richmond, Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavoy, of Tupper Lake, N. Y., the dead girl's parents, tried to force a smile, but with little success.

CREASY "HAPPIEST MAN."

"I am the happiest man in the United States," Creasy announced to the more than 100 persons who had waited in the court room throughout the night, and who rushed forward when the verdict was announced to shake his hand.

At the first trial in September 1922, Creasy was convicted of murdering Miss Lavoy, whose body was found on a couch in her boarding house room after he had spent the evening with her.

After nine months in the death house he was released when the Court of Appeals granted a new trial on the ground that illegal evidence had been admitted.

In his opinion the court held that Creasy had been sent to the death house on the strength of a forged letter, known to be false by the prosecutor.

CURZON'S DAUGHTER OPERATED UPON

London, Jan. 23.—Lady Alexandra Curzon, daughter of Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, and whose engagement to Prince George, youngest son of the King, has been repeatedly rumored, underwent an operation for appendicitis today. Lady Alexandra Curzon is the youngest daughter of the retiring foreign secretary and it is generally believed that her father will have a dukedom conferred upon him with the fall of the Baldwin government.

Lady Alexandra's mother was Mary Victoria Leiter, daughter of Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago.

ADMIRAL SIMS GETTING WELL

He appears to be on the way to quick recovery.

Oppose Bok Plan.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 23.—The students of Union College have voted 216 to 50 against the Bok prize peace plan, it was announced today. The vote was taken at the request of President Charles Alexander Richmond who recently endorsed the plan.

EDITH HAZEL TAYLOR.

Haverhill, Jan. 23.—Further light on the mysterious death of pretty Edith Hazel Taylor, former superintendent of the Newburyport Homeopathic Hospital, may be shed in the next few days when Albert Taylor of Conway, N. H., files suit for $20,000 against Dr. Arthur J. Hewett of Newburyport.

As the first step in his legal fight against his dead daughter's alleged fiance, in Salem Court Taylor has had an attachment for $20,000 placed on Dr. Hewett's property in Newburyport.

"In his declaration which will be filed within the next few days, Mr. Taylor will base his claim for damages upon the acute suffering caused his daughter before her death and Dr. Hewett's part in the causes which proposed her death," stated the law firm of Burke & Crawshaw of Newburyport.

Miss Taylor died November 14 in the Gale Hospital, where she had been taken after an illegal operation had been performed.

At the time of her death, Dr. Hewett declared he knew nothing of the cause of the girl's death. He admitted he had been her friend for several months, but denied the allegations of her family that their wedding had been set for Christmas Day.

She obtained leave of absence from her work for several days until Dr. Hewett became alarmed at her condition and called in Dr. C. S. Benson, who ordered her removal to the hospital.

Sinclair Will Return "When Convenient"

Havre, Jan. 23 (I.N.S.).—"I'll return to America as soon as it is convenient for me to do so," Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, declared here today upon his arrival aboard the liner Paris.

Sinclair said he would so inform the Senate committee investigating the leasing of the Teapot Dome oil fields. Sinclair has been asked by the committee to return to the United States at once to testify on Archie Roosevelt's charge that the Sinclair Company paid the ranch foreman of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall $68,000.

"I have received no message indicating the committee wants me to return immediately," Sinclair said. "But possibly there are some cables awaiting me in Paris."

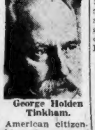
Commenting on the resignation of Roosevelt from his company, Sinclair expressed surprise.

"There were on indications when I left the United States that he contemplated such action," he said.

"If you want my honest opinion, the Teapot Dome deal was a good one for the government," Sinclair added. "The government got too much from the deal, in my opinion."

WOULD AID MARRIAGE OF OFFICIALS ABROAD

Washington, Jan. 21.—Marriage of American officials abroad to comely foreign ladies is encouraged by a bill filed in the House by a bachelor, Congressman George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts.



George Holden Tinkham.

The bill would permit the wife of an American official, married abroad, to attain American citizenship merely by taking the oath of allegiance before any American consul.

Tinkham is not only a bachelor, but he has the reputation of being so rich that money falls out of his pockets.

Yankee Division Defends War Record; Calls Major's Attack on It "Slander"

Washington, Jan. 23.—General Pershing was hissed by soldiers of the 26th Division in a Y. M. C. A. hut in France when his picture was shown in movies after that of Major-General Edwards, according to testimony by Hamilton R. Horsey of Hartford, Ct., a former colonel, before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs.

The testimony was offered at the hearing on confirmation of the promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel Duncan K. Major to the rank of colonel of the regular army.

As a result of telegrams sent by a group of former Yankee Division officers to Senators Lodge and Walsh of the Senate and Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the committee on military affairs, the entire war record of the 26th Division may be placed before the Senate.

The telegrams read:

REGRET HUNT'S ATTACK.

"With reference to confirmation of Duncan K. Major, the undersigned speaking for many officers and men of the 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces, who have not opposed the confirmation of Col. Major, regret and deplore the statements appearing in the press attributed to Col. T. L. Hunt, counsel for Major, in which he seeks to defend Major by attacking the spirit and achievements of the division.

"The 26th Division has not been on trial. If its record is an issue in this case, we respectfully request that in justice to the thousands of men who gave their service and their lives in the ranks of this division, we may have an opportunity to place before the Senate committee the full record of the division free from personal questions.

"UNJUST SLANDER."

"If the record of the division is not an issue, we ask you to prevent its unjust slander which it has no opportunity to answer."

The signers are: General John H. Sherburne, 51st Field Artillery Brigade; Colonel William J. Keville, Colonel Paul J. Neron, Colonel John F. Osborn, Colonel Ernest R. Redmond, Major Charles P. Cabot, Lieutenant-Colonel Oliver Wolcott, Lieutenant-Colonel Daniel Needham, Captain John T. Comerford, Captain Henry M. Biles and Captain Floyd H. Blackman.

Engine Blowup Kills 3

Aliquippa, Pa., Jan. 24 (I.N.S.).—Three persons, including the fireman and engineer, were killed when the locomotive on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie train No. 7, en route from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, blew up 500 yards west of the station here today.

The force of the explosion lifted the locomotive 100 yards off the rails and left in a mass of wreckage in the yards of the Jones & Laughlin steel plant, bordering the tracks.

The number of passengers injured is not known.

UNLICENSED QUINCY QUACK FLOUTS LAW

by a job that was crude even for a quack.

Black is not content with what he can milk from patients in the physical world, but invades the metaphysical sphere. He dubs himself a "metaphysician" and his wife is advertised as a "Trance Medium." In addition, he runs a real estate business.

Not only does Black get you when you are with him, but he gets you when you're away, specializing in "Absent Treatments."

And says he, "We certainly can help you."

In today's article we are going to tell of Dr. Black. Tomorrow we shall tell about his wife, a trance medium, whom this newspaper through a woman investigator found ignoring the law by diagnosing, prescribing medicine and charging a fee.

Black is a Scotchman with a burry accent to his speech. He is of medium height with light brown hair, thick at the sides but thinning rapidly on top. He has a thick, red mustache and heavy breath. He affects a sombre garb, black fourin-hand tie and looks like a preacher.

Such attire seldom fails to impress the human flies who crawl into the web he has spun in Norfolk Downs.

And what a web that is. One believing in signs will never pass Black's house.

On a gilt letters, on a black background is a sign nailed on the front piazza which reads:

'J. J. Black, Real Estate."

On glass inside the front windows of the house are several signs advertising the Blacks as "Healers," "Spiritual Mediums," "Metaphysicians," "Clairvoyants" and "Trance Mediums."

On some of these signs does Black label himself a "Doctor." Yet on business cards which he has had scattered throughout Greater Boston by the thousands appear: "DR. AND MRS. J. J. BLACK."

Black prints on his business card photographs of himself and his wife.

HOLDS "CLASSES"

"Only one minute walk to trains and electrics." Black's card reads, and that's all it is, being but a few steps up Billings road from the railroad station.

Many have taken that short trip to Black's; so many in fact that Black has set aside a room on the first floor designated as a "class" room. There, either he or his wife, or both, hold "classes."

The room has a blackboard and cheap kitchen and dining room chairs arranged in tiers or rows. There face the single chair the teacher squats in and perhaps fakes a trance and communion with the spiritual world delivering bogus messages to those present.

As to the rest of Black's card read for yourself:

"Spiritual Mediums.

"Readings and Treatments daily.

"Five questions answered by mail for $1. Send birth date for brief horoscope reading with name FREE. Also stamped addressed envelope.

"Circle Message Meetings are held on Sundays at 3 o'clock P. M. and Tuesdays at 3 and 8 P. M. All present receive messages from Mr. and Mrs. Black.

"Metaphysical lectures and true character readings are given on Thursdays at 8 P. M.

"Absent Treatments." "We certainly can help you."

EVASIVE ON "DOCTOR"

"We certainly can help you," Black says. Let's see how he helped an investigator for the American whom we'll designate as Jones. Jones, as you will recall was examined at Haymarket Square Relief Station by reputable physicians and pronounced in excellent health. He rang the bell at the front door and presently there appeared a middle-aged woman.

"Is Dr. Black at home?" asked Jones.

The mention of "Doctor" seemed to react unfavorably on the woman and she eyed the caller with suspicion. Presently she left the door, speaking no word, to reappear in a few seconds.

"Come in," she said. "Follow the stairs and you'll find Mr. Black."

Jones noted the substitution of "Mister" for "Doctor" and mounted the stairs.

They were carpeted and the house was neat with the appearance of comfortable prosperity. The stairs made a turn to end facing a room with door open.

SEES PATIENT

At a flat-topped desk sat Black, his red mustache bent over a paper on which he was writing. On the desk lay what appeared to be a huge batch of correspondence.

After following the usual procedure of certain types of pseudo-successful men to allow a caller to get self conscious and uncomfortable before noting his presence, Black looked up.

"Well," he said, pleasantly.

Jones pulled up a chair, lowered his voice, coughed as though greatly embarrassed then said:

"Well, its like this, doctor. I was at a party in Somerville a couple of weeks ago and haven't felt well since."

"Tell me everything," said Black. "I'll close the door."

He did so.

"Well, there's really nothing more to tell," said Jones. "I just don't feel well."

Black asked some pertinent questions which Jones evaded, thenatid: "I'll examine you."

The examination was more casual even than those performed by the great Mooney. Black merely looked at Jones, then exclaimed sharply: "I'll tell you what you've got. You've got ——. But you've caught it just in time."

"You really think so?" exclaimed Jones in apparent horror.

"Positively," said Black. "No doubt about it."

"Can you cure me?" asked Jones with a worried look.

"Sure," replied Black, as he completed a bungled dressing that a novice nurse would not be guilty of. "I was in a Marine Hospital for ten years curing men of just your trouble. Can I fix you up?"

The healer and metaphysician laughed.

"I'll fix you up all right, Futhermore I'll give you medicine and everything and won't charge you a nickel until you are cured. Wait here and I'll get it."

He left the room and Jones heard him descend to the cellar of the house. As his footsteps died the investigator relieved himself of the bandage which had been wound upon him then inspected the room.

It looked as unnatural as Black.

On one wall hung a diploma from a school of osteopathy. On the other wall was a wicker bookshelf, without books but representing the healer's conception of a medicine cabinet.

Dr. Black returned strangely laden. He carried what he called medicine, comprising:

A half pint whiskey flask filled with a thick fluid.

A two-ounce bottle of a liquid he described as an antiseptic wash.

A small tin of orange colored salve, the tin having no cover.

SOME MEDICINE

A paper of small white capsules. Some dark brown pills.

Taking his seat at the desk and motioning Jones into his seat, Black laid the "medicaments" down and explained how they were to be used.

"And now," said the great doctor with a benevolent smile, as he patted his "medicaments" paternally, "I am not going to charge you anything for my services until you are cured—

"BUT—

"These medicines cost me $10 so of course you better pay me that."

Jones eyed Black in his saddest manner.

"I'm sorry doctor," he said, "I haven't that much with me just now."

Black's breath came forth in a snort as his teeth were exposed.

"Well, how much have you got?" he asked.

"Three dollars," Jones said.

The quack smiled—pityingly. "That wouldn't pay for one bottle of medicine," he said, "but I will give it to you." He reached forth a red-haired hand. Jones paid him three dollars.

"Just as soon as you get cured," said Black, as he pocketed the money, "you can give me the rest. Or, if you feel right after taking a few doses you can show your appreciation by giving me the balance. The total cost of the cure will be $15."

"I'll do that doctor," said Jones standing up.

Black took a piece of dirty newspaper from his desk made a parcel of all the medicaments and wrapped them up. "Use these medicines," he said, "as I have prescribed. If you don't, I'll know next time you come and you better come a week from today."

2ND PROBER CALLS

He put no string about the newspaper package, merely made a small bundle of it and handed it to Jones.

"What about my diet?" asked that young man.

"Son," said Black the quack, "eat anything you want."

Jones left the house finding his way out alone as the great healer, clairvoyant and metaphysician returned to his desk presumably to help others with "absent treatment." Every ash barrel yawned to Jones for the motley array of medicaments he carried, but he refused them then and, knowing that the authorities will be anxious to see them.

Early in January as investigator for the Boston American whom we will call Smith, called on Black the Quack.

Smith rang the Black doorbell about 2:30 one afternoon. Black himself responded.

"Is this Dr. Black?" asked Smith.

"No," was the reply. "this is Mr. Black."

"I wanted to consult you Mr. Black," Smith said. "A party in a drug store up in Quincy said you were a friend of his, quite a naturopath and for me not to go to anybody but you if I didn't feel well."

"I am not a doctor," said Black the Quack. "I give readings. No doubt I can help you, make you feel a little better."

"Well if you can spare a few minutes," said Smith, "I'll step in."

"Come in," said Black.

He opened a door off the main floor reception room and revealed the class room. There were six rows of chairs. Black went to a corner of the room, motioned Smith into a chair, then pulled up one for himself but kept it three feet away from the prospective patient. He made another of his "eye inspections" and then said to Smith "Have you any reason to think you have?"

"No," replied Smith, surprised at the question as he had complained of a run down condition and falling hair.

"Well, I don't think you have," Black said. "I have worked 10 or 15 years on that particular disease and have medicine to cure it if you have it. I will show you that yours is simply a case of worrying. Your nerves are all shot. It has affected your whole system."

Smith nodded.

FAKE READING

"I see you are away from your wife," Black said.

Smith lives with his wife, but he said: "Yes" and Black continued. "You're going to be back with her soon. Her mother was the cause of all the trouble."

"Yes," replied Smith.

"They tell me so," Black declared. "You have a policeman in your family," Black asserted.

"No, but I have a brother-in-law a conductor," said Smith.

"I can see the brass buttons," Black explained.

"Why should you think it was a policeman?" Smith asked.

"Oh, I don't know," laughed the great healer and metaphysician, "I just figured it that way."

He went on at great length in a preambles of hallucinative introspective yarns which Smith "yessed" him into believing were true. These Black, the quack, regards as a "reading." He ended by holding out a red-haired paw and asking with the slickness of the members of his lucrative profession, "Two dollars please."

Smith paid.

"Now," said Black, "drop into Brown's drug store in Quincy. "I'll call up the clerk there and tell him to mix you up something for your nerves. Call again."

That's Black.

Tomorrow you shall read of his wife.

City Hospital Staff Indorses Expose

"Editor,
"Boston American:

"I want to heartily endorse the efforts of the Boston American in its campaign against unqualified and unworthy practitioners in medicine. There is nothing that tends so much to lower the confidence of the public in the medical profession as such unworthy physicians. Now that so much attention has been drawn to the matter in this and neighboring States, the campaign of the Boston American comes at an extremely opportune time, and I feel sure that if this work is backed up by qualified physicians of the State, as it should be, we can go a long distance in cleaning up the situation once for all.

"Dr. John J. Dowling, Superintendent of the Boston City Hospital, and other members of our Visiting Staff, heartily agree with all of the foregoing statements.

"Very truly yours,

World Tour Lecture to Attract Boston Society Folk, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

FOR the small sum of three dollars you can travel around the world—in spirit, if not in body.

Which is another way of saying that Joseph Lindon Smith, the well-known artist, is the very interesting guide for a trip which he calls "Around the World in Sixty Minutes."

Mrs. Edwin S. Webster is opening her home at No. 396 Dartmouth street for the affair, which begins at 3:30 this afternoon, and is for the benefit of the Boston Mawr Scholarship Fund.

Mrs. Thorndike Howe

A host of smart folk have made "reservations" for this novel expedition, including Mesdames S. Parker Bremer, Talbot Aldrich, Edwin Farnham Greene and James Parker.

Mrs. Thorndike Howe of Brimmer street is largely responsible for this unique means of raising funds.

ALTHOUGH the less balmy months often find Miss "Elsie" Sears sojourning along the Riviera or other European spots, this Winter the prominent sportswoman seems content to remain in Boston.

Miss Sears makes her headquarters in town, but every week-end she runs down to Beverly Farms, where she says "how do" to the shiny thoroughbreds boarded in the stables of "Pound Plain Farm," the Caswell place.

With her tall, slender figure and her blonde hair—which she wears in the pompadour fashion—Miss Sears is one of society's most distinguished looking women.

She has a decided penchant for black, in which she was gowned at the senior supper dance the other evening. Also of black was the frock she wore to the dinner which Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth gave in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt.

MRS. ROSITA FORBES is found to have no end of interesting things to say at her illustrated lecture on "The Secret of the Sahara." The lecture will be held tomorrow evening at 8:15 in aid of the Winter Nursery School.

Mrs. Forbes is the only white woman who has ever been known to enter the sacred city of Paj, a gloomy citadel hewn out of rock. Upon this mystic, old-world spot the notable British woman explorer stumbled during her recent trip through the Sahara Desert to reach the headquarters of the mysterious Senussi at Kafara. Mrs. Forbes tells a very thrilling story of her hairbreadth escapes and her life as a veiled Arab woman.

Mrs. Richard Curtis

Among the group of society sponsors is Mrs. Richard C. Curtis (Anita Grosvenor) of Marlboro, who has herself made some colorful treks into out-of-the-way corners of the globe.

MURIEL ASTOR GETS $100,000 LEGACY

Grandnuncle's Legacy Turned Over to Her by Brother Vincent in Court

New York, Jan. 23—Almost $100,000 of the estate of her grandnuncle, Henry Astor, has been turned over to Eva Muriel Astor, daughter of the late John Jacob Astor. It was disclosed in a petition filed in the Surrogate's Court, by her brother, William Vincent Astor.

He asks to be discharged as general guardian of this estate of his sister, who became of age July last.

The petition states that a share in the estate of Henry Astor was set up for Miss Astor in 1920, with William Astor as guardian until she became of age.

After her majority, according to the petition, she signed a paper releasing her brother from further responsibility.

FOR NEW, OR OLD, OR WARM, OR COLD

WITH A BIT of color you can get almost any effect you want in a room. Red, yellow and orange add warmth. Blue, green and gray are soothing and cool. You can stain or paint furniture—old pieces—or the new, unfinished kind—to harmonize with any rugs or draperies or woodwork.

LET US CONSIDER the dining room. Of course you'll choose plain walls of neutral hue. You can get a pretty drop-leaf table, 33x42 (unfinished birch) for about $15.00. Chairs, about $4.00 each. A serving table, with drawer for silver, sells for about $14.00.

THERE ARE MANY artistic designs in tables, chairs and other pieces of unfinished furniture.

ONE SMART YOUNG housekeeper bought this unfinished set and used a gray wood dye on it. She said she liked the dye because it was easy to apply. It cost only $1.00 a quart and it looked well in the Winter with orange over-draperies. In Summer she will set a blue or a pale green bowl on the table and use linen to match.

A JANUARY BRIDE showed us what she had done with some old oak furniture, bought second-hand. It was in her bedroom. She had painted the woodwork deep ivory and the walls a pale cream. She used varnish remover to get a smooth surface for the furniture. Then she bought a good enamel in pale green ($1.35 a quart) and found that one coat was enough. Her big brush (bristles guaranteed not to fall out) cost 30 cents, and a little one, for the corners, cost her 15 cents.

SHE SAID THAT if the finish on old furniture is not high, a little wood alcohol applied two days before you intend to paint, will serve instead of a varnish remover. It softens the varnish, so the paint sticks all right.

IF YOU WANT TO take a lesson in furniture painting, you can learn a lot for $2.00. All about colors, mixing, designing.

Answer to L. C.—Yes, you can get transfer patterns of flowers for your bed and dresser. You just paint over the design.

Answer to J. S.—Painted furniture is good in a hall. Use dull orange. Let it dry three days. Then put black paint over it and rub with a soft cloth just as the black begins to dry. You can make the orange show through at the corners or in the center of a chair-round, for instance. Very effective.

Answer to E. S. G.—I cannot give firm names thru the column. Send me your name and address and I'll answer promptly.

PRISCILLA PRICE.

N. B. Whenever you want to know where to get anything, please write to me, care Boston American, 80 Summer Street. No reply can be made unless full name and address is given.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Protests from various individuals and organizations against participation of enlisted men in the navy in boxing matches such as that recently held in Madison Square Garden, New York, when one lad was knocked out, have led President Coolidge, after a conference with Secretary Denby, to direct that orders be issued which will prevent a recurrence.

Must Pay $9,950

MME. HENRI SUDREAU

Paris, Jan. 23. — Mme. Henri Sudreau was ordered by the courts to pay $9,950 to Paul Benoit, who was her secretary in the United States and who had the title of "chamberlain" as in a royal household. Mme. Strudeau was exonerated by an American jury after shooting her former husband, Jacques Lebaudy. Benoit told the court the widow had promised to pay him for his aid in untangling the Lebaudy inheritance, but she had always refused to pay. He produced a written promise.

LYNN COPS FAIL TO WAIT FOR IRATE MAYOR

Mayor Harland A. McPhetres had an appointment with the second division of the Lynn Police Department at 830 this morning. The Mayor intended to read the riot act concerning certain stories about protection and leaks in the department.

The Mayor arrived at police headquarters a few minutes late. He found the second division had left, leaving the Mayer flat as a flounder.

Woe! Was the Mayor angry? Hot lamoary!

"I am going to clean up Lynn if I have to send certain members of the police department out looking for a job," said the Mayor.

Last week the Mayor heard a story to the effect that he was receiving money for protecting a certain gambling house. He ordered it raided. The place was "tipped off" and the raid netted nothing.

BOOTLEG DEAL BACKED BY LILA LEE

Her Mother Says Film Star Gave $40,000 in Notes for the Purchase of Liquor

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Augusta Appel, mother of Lila Lee, motion picture actress, named a veteran police captain as the recipient of $40,000 in notes signed by Lila Lee, with which to buy whiskey.

Lila Lee

Charles Appel, Lila's father, formerly operated the North Side Turner Hall, and is in trouble over various whiskey and financial deals. He has been a fugitive from justice for many months and is thought to be in Mexico.

Mrs. Appel says the police captain and her husband had been involved in many booze transactions and that the whiskey, bought with her daughter's money, was now stored in some warehouse, the location of which is unknown to her. Suit for collection of one note for $10,000, signed by Lila Lee, has been begun in Los Angeles. Lila says she is unable to pay it and will not ask James Kirkwood, her director and husband, to help her out of the dilemma.

FIXES $200 FINE FOR MISBRANDED FOODS

A fine of $200 is provided as the penalty for the sale of misbranded foodstuffs, in a bill favored before the legislative Committee on Public Health today by Herman Lythgoe, chief of the State division of food and drugs. Mr. Lythgoe said the present law applies to manufacturers of foodstuffs. The bill would exempt a retailer from the penalty should the goods be guaranteed by the manufacturer.

Representative Coleman E. Kelly of Dorchester withdrew his petition prohibiting the sale of patent medicines containing more than six per cent. alcohol, unless such medicine be prescribed by a registered prescription.

GAS PRICE BOOSTED BY GULF COMPANY

The Gulf Refining Company, following the lead of other local companies, today raised the price of gasoline to 20 cents a gallon, an increase of one cent. The tank wagon price, under the new scale, is 17½ cents a gallon. Yesterday, when other companies raised their prices, the Socony's price remained the same. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey advanced tank wagon prices two cents a gallon in North Carolina and South Carolina, and one cent in Virginia.

1,403 CASES OF BEER FOR PARADE

Celebration for Springfield on Return of Brew, Illegally Seized

Springfield, Jan. 23.—Shades of Volstead and Wayne B. Wheeler!

The spectacle of 1,403 cases of good beer being escorted through Springfield's streets, on a fleet of motor trucks, and escorted by blaring bands and attended by such cheers as the parched throats of the proletariat may emit, is promised the residents of Springfield.

The beer was seized in a raid on the plant of the Keystone Metal & Waste Company. United States Commissioner Gordon ruled that the prohibition agents acted without authority because the search warrant was illegal and ordered the release of the owners of the beer.

Now Attorney Harry Ehrlich, acting for the defendants, has petitioned for the return of the beer.

"We'll have a real celebration and return the beer from the U. S. warehouses in the armory in real style if the petition is granted," says Ehrlich. "We'll load the beer on trucks, have a band and a general celebration—a sort of triumphal march, you know."

Attorney Ehrlich was mum on what final disposition would be made of the beer if it is turned over to his clients.

GIRL NOVELIST, 16, BARS SEX PROBLEM

London, Jan. 23.—The rising generation in England has produced a champion in Mollie Panter-Downes, a sixteen-year-old schoolgirl. She has published her first novel, "The Shoreless Seas." This provincial girl, who wears her hair down her back, is still attending school and thinks hockey is the greatest game. She told reporters she had no opinions on sex triangles. Mollie is writing her second novel.

'ART CHARGES KEITH CIRCUIT IS 'TRUST

New York City, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Max Hart testified in his $5,250,000 suit against the B. F. Keith Exchange and various associations that his dismissal by E. F. Albee, president of the Keith Circuit, in 1920, because of a letter written to the Shuberts, ruined his business. He said acts were afraid to book through him for fear of being blacklisted. Hart's suit charges the Keith organization is a monopoly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Motor Chats

by C. F. Donnocker

"Even though 1923 exceeded all our expectations, there is every reason to believe that in 1924 business will attain to far greater proportions," says Edsel B. Ford, president Ford Motor Company.

"More people will buy automobiles during the coming year than ever before. Evidence of our belief in this is the extensive expansion program we are now carrying out and which is aimed to effect new manufacturing economies and materially increase production. So, in the New Year, we will produce more cars and trucks and confidently expect to sell more of them, both in the domestic and foreign fields.

"Women are a greater influence in the automobile buying field than ever before, and the coming year will see this influence considerably extended. It will be expressed particularly in the closed car sales, for it is natural for women to turn to this more comfortable means of motoring.

"Women, through their guardianship of the family purse, have become remarkably good judges of values, and their knowledge in this respect now extends as much to automobiles as to anything else."

One of the latest arrivals on Automobile Row is the new Velie model 66 Sedan. This car attracted great attention at the New York Automobile Show. The car has 118 inch wheel-base and unusually fine finish for a car in this class, $1,750 delivered in Boston.

The new Velie six motor has met with approval in various engineering tests and has some new ideas in lubrication. It is claimed to be a very quiet and powerful motor as well as unusually economical.

Peerless owners throughout New England will be interested to learn that Earl B. Wilson has been appointed sales manager of the Peerless Motor Car Company at Cleveland.

His long experience in selling high grade motor cars has made Mr. Wilson thoroughly conversant with all aspects of the automobile business from the standpoint of the wholesale and retail departments as well as the factory end.

GIRL'S MEMORY OF ONE FACE SAVES $125

Months Went by Before She Saw Man Accused in Bad Check Deal

Several months go Eva Smith was called into her boss' office at the Prime Cloak & Suit Company, No. 90 Washington street.

Sidney H. Antick

"That check for $125 you took in payment for two coats yesterday was no good," said the Boss.

"Oh!" exclaimed Eva. "And he looked so honest. If I ever lay my eyes on that man."

Eva commutes daily to her home in Gloucester. And she did "lay eyes on him" right on the train.

Two Gloucester officers and the conductor refused to arrest him without a warrant. A brakeman told Eva who he was, however, and she hopped back to Boston after warrants.

Inspector Flinn, Eva and Sidney H. Antick of No. 112 Humbolt avenue, Roxbury, the latter a bookkeeper at the store, stepped into the fashionable store of William Kaplan at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

"That's the man," said Eva, pointing to Kaplan.

"That's him," echoed Antick.

"That is big," said Flinn, thinking of bad checks reported from other stores.

The two cloaks were hanging on Kaplan's rack. Kaplan, by the way, is the man who borrowed money on worthless notes from the Beverly National Bank about the time Allen Bennett, cashier at that bank, committed suicide.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. DEATH TOLL IN LYNDONVILLE BLAZE IS 7

Ten Others Burned and Hurt, Three Seriously; Thirty Families Homeless

Lyndonville, Vt., Jan. 23.—The $500,000 fire which wiped out the business section of Lyndonville took the lives of seven persons, instead of the one whose death has been reported.

The grief of a community almost stunned by its monetary and commercial losses increased a hundredfold with the finding of the skeletons of an adult person and two children in the ruins of the Stearns block, where the fire is believed to have originated.

This sensational discovery led to a hasty checking up of all the known inhabitants of the village, with the result that three others, supposed to have been taken in by friends, were also found to be missing.

The list of dead and supposed dead to date, is:

Joseph Sidney, 52 years old.
Mrs. Joseph Sidney, 49.
Joseph Sidney 2d., their grandson, ten months old.
Mrs. Mertie McDowell, 35, a widow.
Stuart McDowell, 12.
Hattie McDowell, 16.
Mrs. Victoria Stone, 70.

30 FAMILIES HOMELESS.

Although the fire was confined to the trading centre of the community, nearly thirty families are for the time being homeless. The upper parts of the four or five buildings containing stores were given over to large and small apartments, and out of these apartments the tenants, uninsured in most cases, escaped with only the clothes they were wearing. The Red Cross Society is administering relief.

One floor above the boiler room, where the fire is thought to have started, lived Mr. and Mrs. Joel Sidney with their ten-months-old granddaughter. Above them was the home of Mrs. Mertie MacDowell, a widow, and her two young sons, James and Stuart. Number of bones found in the ruins is all that remains of the victims.

Two men and a woman are in a hospital expected to die from injuries received in the fire. They are Mrs. James Tipton, suffering from burns and shock; Carroll Simpson, burns, internal injuries, lacerated scalp and broken foot, and George Greenwood, scalp wound, burns, injured foot and shock. Seven others were reported seriously but not dangerously hurt.

BONES FOUND IN EMBERS.

The bodies of Mrs. McDowell and her two boys were found in the embers of the Stearns block, one of the few wooden buildings in New England which housed a motion picture theatre.

Some time after the close of Monday night's performance, Lyndonville was aroused by an explosion in the Stearns block, the crash breaking tremendous holes in the floors directly over the boiler-room.

In thirty-five minutes the building was in ruins, and the fire had spread to the Eaton block nearby. A terrific wind was blowing and it was only a question of minutes before the flames were carried across the street to the Masonic Building and the Ide block.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney and their infant grandson were trapped in their apartment. Mrs. Victoria Stone, whose death was for fifteen hours the only one reported, lost her life by jumping to the sidewalk from a third story window.

U.S. FLEET ENDS BLOCKADE BY MEXICANS

Naval Demonstration Causes Rebels to Drop Plan; More Federal Troops Revolt

Washington, Jan. 23.—The American naval demonstration in Mexican waters has resulted in the Mexican revolutionists backing down virtually completely in their announced blockade of the great oil port at Tampico.

Consul Wood at Vera Cruz, headquarters of the De La Huerta rebels, informed the State Department today that the de facto regime has indefinitely postponed its blockade of the port.

Discussing the lifting of the Tampico blockade officials said the De La Huerta faction apparently decided not to risk an issue with eight American warships which the State Department sent to Mexican waters to protect American interests and keep the lanes of commerce open.

The cruiser Richmond is standing off Tampico to make sure that De La Huerta's two gunboats do not molest foreign shipping and the cruiser Omaha, accompanied by six destroyers, are due off rebel headquarters at Vera Cruz today.

As interpreted here, the "indefinite postponement" of the blockade means its complete abandonment by the de facto government at Vera Cruz.

Mexican Garrison at Monterey Joins Rebels

Brownsville, Tex., Jan. 23.—The garrison at Monterey, capital of the Mexican state of Nuevo Leon, has revolted and gone over to the rebels, according to unofficial reports reaching here today. Federal military authorities at Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, have ordered trains for Monterey held up.

Mexico City, Jan. 21 (Universal)—Four former American destroyers that saw service in European waters during the World War will sail from Philadelphia shortly flying the Mexican flag. If they can tempt the rebel gunboats into action there will be a naval battle off Tampico or Vera Cruz.

Three destroyers were bought by the Obregon government from Percy Hintiman. It is understood he bought them from the Navy Department prior to the Disarmament Conference. The Mexican government is also negotiating for four other destroyers now in Florida waters.

FOUR CHILDREN AND MOTHER DIE IN FIRE

Head of Family Badly Burned in Vain Attempts to Rescue Fire Victims

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 23.—A mother and her four daughters, ranging in age from one to sixteen, were burned to death in a fire at Middleport, five miles from here, today, when their home was almost completely destroyed.

Andrew Harvilla, the husband and father, was severely burned in attempting to rescue them.

Mrs. Harvilla lost her life in a heroic effort to save her children. With part of the house a raging furnace, she dashed to the second floor, where she seized her one-year-old baby daughter. She was making her way to the stairway when overcome by smoke.

In the back bedroom, over the kitchen, Eleanor and Julia were found burned to death in bed. Another daughter was found under the bed, where she had evidently crawled in a confused effort to escape from the smoke-filled room.

JUDGE CALLAHAN ILL, WILLETT CASE HALTS

The trial of George F. Willett against Robert F. Herrick and a group of Boston bankers, in effort to recover $15,000,000, and which has been on before a jury in Dedham court for more than two months, was temporarily halted today by the illness of Judge Christopher Callahan. When court opened it was announced that Judge Callahan was confined to his room at the Adams House with a cold and that court stood adjourned for the day.

Judge Callahan's condition is not regarded as serious and it is believed that the trial will be resumed tomorrow.

BILL TILDEN TO BRANCH OUT AS MOVING PICTURE STAR

TENNIS CHAMPION HAS FILM EXPERIENCE

By VINCENT RICHARDS

New York, Jan. 21.—William T. Tilden, national singles champion is headed for the movies. Whether the recent edict barring players from writing articles for the daily journals has anything to do with this decision is unknown.

All that is known seems to be that the famous net star is determined to become a film headliner. Be it said here and now that "Big Bill" is not without either experience or skill in his new venture. Only recently he played with the Provincetown Players in Booth Tarkington's "Clarence" portraying the little role.

A cloak of mystery has been thrown around Tilden's screen future. Will he go in for humor, of the light, delicate, exquisite type practiced, say by Charlie Chaplin? Would screen fans take to the lanky Philadelphian if he possessed a junior size mustache and wore free hanging pantaloons?

Perhaps he will lay siege to the romantic standing of one Valentino, the mud massage beauty!

However, those close to the tall Quaker feel that he will choose the loftier and more difficult field of tragedy as his new forte. They point to the fact that he would make a marvelous Hamlet.

If the Davis Cup hero were to "die" in one of his new roles and I don't wish to appear unsympathetic, it might break the monopoly that he now holds on the tennis game. This would unquestionably allow Johnston and several of the other well-known players to take a new lease on life. That, however, seems unlikely, so tennis fans are reconciled to the champion's supremacy next season.

Should Tilden eventually become a Chaplin or a Valentino, it will be interesting to see just how the officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association will take it.

There are those who are inclined to believe that a new law will be passed barring players from entering this field of endeavor.

At any rate, Tilden apparently pays little attention to the rules that might be passed by the governing body of the Tennis Association. Perhaps if this rule is passed it will be found that "Big Bill" once played the "Kid" in Charlie Chaplin's first edition of this famous theme.

Verily, it looks bad for the offscreen of the association. If Tilden should develop into a movie star it would seem that this newspaper work would no longer hold the same appeal. Thus, the rule barring players from writing would not affect him. What a blow this would be to those who are trying to put across a rule that is not only unfair, but seems ridiculous.

WILSON AND REED CLASH IN ARMORY A. A. BOUT

By RINGSIDE.

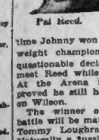
Johnny Wilson, former world's middleweight champion who is a greater favorite than ever with the fans as a result of his recent sensational battle with Harry Greb, has been signed to meet Pal Reed of Natick in the feature bout of ten rounds at a show to be staged by the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday night. It will be Elks Night at the Triple A and it is expected that a large number of Brother Bills will be on hand to witness the contest.

Johnny Wilson

Wilson and Reed staged a spectacular battle at the Boston Arena last November. Although the decision went to Wilson, there were many fans who were of the opinion that Reed's great finish entitled him to the decision. In the second round of that bout, Pal also received big, counting with heavy punches to the jaw which sent the former champion back against the ropes.

Wilson was to return to Yaumuiti, N. J., today, where he will do his training for his frolic with Reed. Frank Marlow has engaged Jim Buckley and Harry Lenney to direct Johnny's training.

As Tex Rickard has already opened negotiations for a return match between Wilson and Greb, the Boston favorite will strive hard to score a victory.



Pal Reed.

Wilson and Reed have always put up torrid engagements. Their first meeting was held at Mechanics Building prior to the time Johnny won the world's middleweight championship. Wilson won a questionable decision. He wouldn't meet Reed while he held the title. At the Arena in November, Pal proved he still has the Indian sign on Wilson.

The winner of Tuesday night's battle will be matched to clash with Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia. Naturally a tussle with Greb is the ultimate prize which will go to the victor of these elimination matches.

FRANKIE GENARO WINS EASILY OVER JOHNNY SHEPPARD

THRILLS IN LAST TWO ROUNDS

By JACK CONWAY.

Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, showed how he was able to defeat Pancho Villa three times when he easily won over Johnny Sheppard, of Woburn, in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building.

Genaro won eight rounds, Sheppard one, the other was even.

The last two frames furnished the big thrills. Sheppard started a terrific spurt at the opening of the ninth frame, being intent upon counting with a knockout if possible.

MADE BRILLIANT SHOWING.

For half the round the Woburn youth made a brilliant, spectacular showing. He counted with heavy right banners to the head and body and took solid left hooks to the body in return.

Then Genaro, master boxer, great fighter, a real champion, flashed forth with all his brilliant qualifications. He circled around Sheppard with dazzling speed, and sent the Woburn youth back on his heels with stiff, resounding left jabs and hooks.

When the opportunity presented itself, Genaro stepped inside of Sheppard's heavy right hand swings and scored to the body.

TIRED WHEN BELL RANG.

Sheppard was tired when the bell sounded for the end of the round. Genaro confident, determined, dazzling.

Came the tenth round. The Woburn delegation called for a spurt from Sheppard. He made the effort, but he was against too great a fighting machine.

Genaro didn't intend to take any chances of the crowd rooting in the decision. He circled the ring at a torrid clip, rocked Sheppard with left hooks to the head and body and cracked his right to his rival's jaw.

MADE STOUT-HEARTED EFFORTS TO REPEL ATTACK

Sheppard made a stout-hearted effort to hold off Genaro's rushes, but to no avail. On one occasion Sheppard went through the ropes as they gave under his weight. He pulled Genaro through the ropes with him. Sheppard was groggy at the bell.

Although defeated, Sheppard made a spectacular showing. He has made the "grade" as a fighting man. He would have won if pitted against any other boxer than the wonderful Genaro.

It was a tough, hard battle all the way. Sheppard went through the ropes in the first session as well as in the second and tenth sessions. On each occasion this was merely due to the weight of his body crashing against the ropes during an exchange of punches.

GENARO SLIPPED AND WENT TO CANVAS IN NINTH.

In the ninth round, Genaro slipped and went to the canvas during the fly which gave him the victory.

Sheppard's big round was the third. In this chapter he whanged his way to close quarters and walloped his rival heavily with cold left and right hand socks.

Sheppard also grabbed a flock of glory in the sixth chapter when he stood toe to toe with the American champion and engaged in a fierce exchange of blows. This chapter was one of those fifty-fifty affairs. The other rounds saw Genaro's colors out front.

This writer believes that those who saw the bout will now agree with us when we declare that Genaro is Villa's master. Villa is more of a showman than Genaro and does a lot of spectacular stuff, but when it comes to perfect boxing and hard, gruelling battling the American title holder has the margin.

Incidentally the bout ended as we predicted it would.

Jimmy Walsh was referee; W. T. McDermott and Pat Moran the judges.

Jack Dillon of Woburn won over Al Walters of Providence in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Hughey Kennedy stopped Walter Theroux in one-round, while Johnny Duffy kayoed George Laliste in four sessions.

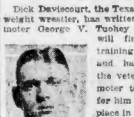
DAVISCOURT TO FINISH WORK HERE

Dick Daviscourt, the Texan heavyweight wrestler, has written to Promoter George V. Tuohey that he will finish his training here and has asked the veteran promoter to secure for him a proper place in which to complete his work, so that he will be in his best form when he tackles Jack Orlandet Sampson in one of the three matches to be held in Mechanics Building next Wednesday night.



Frank Judson

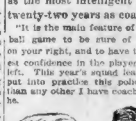
Dick writes that if he wins over Sampson he will be ready to meet any of the first flight of wrestlers and figures he will be able to work through the entire elimination series to the point where he will be in line for a match for the championship.

Frank Judson, the former Harvard coach, is training at New York for his bout the same night, while Mendi will continue his work in Colorado until the last of this week when he will work East by easy stages so as to avoid the usual troubles of athletes who come from mountain altitudes to sea levels.

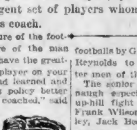
Eagles' Gridiron Team Honored by Students

Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, in his address to the 700 fervid alumni and students who thronged the City Club at the annual Boston College football banquet, spoke of the 1923 eleven as the most intelligent set of players whom he has met in his twenty-two years as coach.

"It is the main feature of the football game to be sure of the man on your right, and to have the greatest confidence in the player on your left. This year's squad learned and put into practice this policy better than any other I have coached," said he.

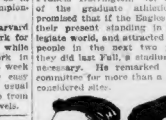


Dr. Timothy Murphy.

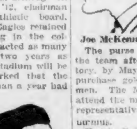


Captain O'Donnell.

Very little talk was made of the Boston College stadium, although A. Francis Harrington, '12, chairman of the graduate athletic board, promised that if the Eagles retained their present standing in the collegiate world, and attracted as many people in the next two years as they did last Fall, a stadium will be necessary. He remarked that the committee for more than a year had considered site.



Bill Cronin.



Major Frank Cavanaugh.

As to the Holy Cross game in Worcester, of which there is much talk in the centre of the State, Coach Cavanaugh epitomized the situation when he said that B. C. would have no more difficulty in defeating the Purple in their own field than in Boston.

Nothing would please the team more than to dedicate the new Holy Cross stadium with a Boston victory, he declared.

SENIORS LAUDED.

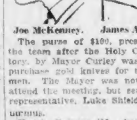
Ex-Captain "Chuck" Darling pictured the 1923 team as a machine which was continually losing some of its most important parts. Lack of injuries, next year, he said, would enable the Eagle to put out a fairly representative sport model machine.

The optimistic prophecy of Captain-elect Joe Koslowsky was followed by the presentation of gold footballs by Graduate-Manager Frank Reynolds to the twenty-three letter men of the squad.

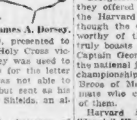
The senior members, whom Cavanaugh especially praised for their up-hill fight of three years, were Frank Wilson, Ray Duffy, Bill Medley, Jack Beaver and Leo Hughes.

GIVEN GOLD KNIVES.

Footballs were also presented to Manager Jim Doherty and Coaches Cavanaugh, "Hiker" Joy and Harry McDevitt.



Joe McKenney.



James A. Dorsey.

The purse of $100, presented to the team after the Holy Cross victory, by Mayor Curley was used to purchase gold knives for the letter men. The Mayor was not able to attend the meeting, but sent as his representative, Luke Shields, an alumnus.

Frank Carney, '93, chairman of the banquet, introduced in order Rev. Richard O'Brien, S. J., faculty director of athletics; Donald E. Kaye, Amherst College, and representative of the New University Club of Boston; Thomas J. Hurley, '95, author of the Boston College Alma Mater song; and Alexander I. Darley, '97, former assistant district attorney of New York.

Joe Koslowsky, "Chuck" Darling

Among the guests were Rev. Charles H. Lyons, S. J., former president of Boston College; Jake Defell, Bill Kelleher, Tony Comerford, Jack Heaphy and George Kelley of the "championship" eleven.

ROUTIS WINS FRENCH BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE

Paris, Jan. 23.—Andre Routis became bantamweight champion of France when he was given the decision over Charley Ledoux on points in a 20-round bout.

Francis Charles knocked out Georges Ranquet in the third round of what was to have been a 20-round bout and retained the French middleweight championship.

The spectators protested against the decision of the judges which took away from Ledoux the title he had held for fourteen years.

They clamored about the ringside for a half hour, but the judges stuck to their decision.

Worcester, Jan. 23.—Allentown Johnny Leonard was awarded his bout with Jimmy Cooney of Holyoke when Cooney fouled him in the first round.

GEORGETOWN IS READY FOR HARVARD

Intrest in the annual Knights of Columbus games in Mechanics Hall, Saturday night, took a sudden flight when it was announced that Georgetown of Washington had offered to race Harvard in a 720-yard relay.

Both teams are described as "crack" outfits. The race should be a thriller from the start to the final sprint for the tape.

"Soapie" Walters

Officials of the meet have endeavored to get a worthy opponent for Harvard. Princeton and Pennsylvania were asked to meet the Crimson runners, but declined.

Georgetown saved the day when they offered to match strides with the Harvard men, and it looks as though the Crimson will meet foe worthy of their steel. Georgetown truly boasts of a marvelous star in Captain George Mariners, who won the national junior A. A. U. half-mile championship last year. In Eddie Brose of Medford he has a teammate who can step with the best of them.

Harvard is expected to start "Soapie" Walters, Chaplin, Cutcheon and Coburn.

DARTMOUTH ENTERS 28 IN B. A. A. MEET

Dartmouth will enter twenty-eight athletes in the B. A. A. games at the Arena a week from Saturday night.

In the list received at the Back Bay club house some of the finest performers who ever wore the "D" will compete for the Hanover college.

Among the best known will be such performers as K. P. Libbey and Mark Skiles in the pole vault, L. B. McFadden in the high jump with a mark of over six feet in that event, R. P. Edgar in the dash and N. D. Hughes.

Coach Tom Keane of Syracuse sent the entries of Chester Bowman of the Orange eleven but fall in the sprint and Walter Mamos, who will be a competitor in the Hunter mile.

Mamos is a former Brooklyn school boy, who showed such form in the interscholastic ranks, coach Keane figures he will be a factor in the Boston race.

ARAMASCHI OUT TO CONQUER CHAMPION

Ed Strangler Lewis will have his work cut out for him when he risks his title in a finish match up at the Grand tomorrow night with Angelo Taramaschi, world's greatest Italian wrestler. Angelo is a careful, heady grappler, and studies the game and every move he makes carefully. He watched Lewis carefully in his match with Alvarez last week, and he has figured out just how he can block him in every move he makes.

Strangler Lewis

The Italians of Boston and vicinity are getting worked up over the match and orders are coming in by tens and twenties for reservations.

In the advance betting Lewis is picked to win two falls in less than one hour and his manager doesn't think the Italian can go that long.

When Taramaschi was told this he laughed. "I want to be there when he does that," said Angelo. "He will think every minute he tries is about five, I believe. I will take him a little faster than he is used to going and if he runs out through the ropes I shall go after him.

"He won't get away with those stalling tactics with me. I want to wrestle and not stall. I want the best man to win, and I am ready for the battle of my life. Just say for me that I expect to beat Lewis, but if he beats me I shall have no excuses to make about not being in shape."

Lewis realizes he has a real job on his hands. He has heard of Taramaschi before. He came East and also of the string of victories he has piled up since coming to Boston. He is taking no chances on this bout, but is working a few extra days to get right. Should it be a long bout he wants to have endurance to help him out, but he is keen at 200 pounds.

Joe is satisfied in his own mind he can beat Lewis or Stanislaus if given another bout with either. Had Billy Sandow remained away from the ringside, he thinks he would now be world's champion. Hundreds of letters from fans all over the country are coming in to the management asking that Yanana Joe be given matches with Stasuk and Lewis.

In the opening bout Jack Albright, the man with the thousand holds, will meet Justiano Silva, the Portuguese champion. Jack likes to wrestles big men, and Silva count to be to his liking as he tips the

ARENA BILLS A LEAGUE GAME TONIGHT

The B. A. A. and the Maples will meet tonight at the Arena in a United States League game.

The Jones are a far different hockey team than the last aggregation submitted to the Unicorns early in the season. Confidence and accurateness make them dangerous.

Jerry Geran

Except Leo Hughes and Ed Garrity, the Maples are a strictly Canadian outfit. Outside of Ag Smith and Abeck Campbell the B. A. A. team is a Yankee aggregation.

If the Maples' defense stands up a terrific match should result. Those Yankees on the B. A. A. team are the shrewdest men in the East to take advantage of defensive weakness. Jerry Geran is at his best when the outer defense begins to look like a sieve.

Chick Williams has captured the Boston fans by brilliant forward line work. He is playing his best hockey this year. His new form of attack is a swing from the right side over to the left wing and then a long backhand shot at the net.

Eddie Enright is back in the Unicorn forward line. He will give that team more scoring power. Enright has a peach of a shot.

Manager Brown regrets to announce to those fans who have not obtained their tickets for Saturday's doubleheader that the house is all sold out.

MEDFORD DEFEATS WEYMOUTH, 31 TO 14

The Medford High basketball team defeated the Weymouth High, five, 31 to 14, at the Medford High gymnasium yesterday. Coach Sampson's team displayed a brilliant passing game which proved disastrous for Weymouth.

"Fish" Ellis, scored nineteen points for the winners, while his teammate Captain Appani also played a big part in the Medford victory. Herb Carroll and Knox were the others who fared Weymouth.

The victory was Medford's fourth this season, and Faculty Manager Ralph B. Kendall will enter the five in the Tufts basketball tournament.

TERRY PARKER AND SHUGRUE IN BATTLE

Willie Shugrue of Waterbury and Terry Parker of the North End promise to give the Casino A. C. fans one of the best bantam matches Lynn has had in some time. The boys battle on next Monday night. Since the last Parker-Shugrue clash, the Waterbury lad has defeated several high-class bantams, including Charlie "Kid" Kohler, whom he met at Madison Square Garden last month. Shugrue is a rough, two-handed fighter and since Parker likes nothing better than a rough pandling battle, it looks like action at Lynn next Monday night.

Since Parker's win over Nee, Lynn has been anxious to get a second peek at the former national amateur champion and, though Parker's manager has had better offers, he believed Jack Murphy was entitled to the services of the much-sought-after Parker.

Parker's North End and East Boston followers are making arrangements to take in the scrap in large numbers.

WEEK IN JAIL CURES GIRL OF 'ROMANCE'

Runaway West Boylston Miss Glad to Go Home After Recanting Her Strange Story

"Harriett Dunn," eighteen, bobbed hair and attractive, is keen for romance.

In fact, it took an entire week in the House of the Good Shepherd to dissipate the romance that filled her when she told the judge in Municipal Court that for eight years she had been a homeless wanderer, living in barns and road-side camps, constantly traveling about the country in search of adventure.

Today the girl was turned over to her parents. Her real name is Alice Jewett and her home is in West Boylston. The girl, instead of having traveled thousands of miles afoot and on freight trains has never been farther away from West Boylston than Boston.

She left home about a month ago and her parents, who are well to do, have been searching for her since. She ran away from home once before, but was gone only a short time on that occasion.

The girl was arrested a week ago while talking to three strange men. She was pleased when sent to the House of the Good Shepherd, but after a week in the institution, telephoned the probation officer and told the true story of her plight.

New Haven Shows Net of $400,000 for December

New York, Jan. 23 (C.N.S.).—New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad earned a net surplus of $400,000 in December, bringing the net deficit for 1923 down to $2,925,000, the best showing in six years, according to a statement by President E. J. Pearson, today.

In 1921 the New Haven system reported a deficit of $15,328,635, and in 1922, $4,865,767.

SIX MONTHS FOR WOMAN WHO STOLE CHECK

Court Tells Mrs. DuBois He Doesn't Believe Her Story of How She Obtained It

Mrs. Annie DuBois, alias Clara Ross, who, Boston police say, is wanted for burglaries in other cities, today was sentenced to six months for inducing two young girls to pass a bogus check on a Boston bank.

Mrs. DuBois, police charged, stole the check, which was for $85, from the mails, had it certified at a Fall River bank, and came to Boston to cash it.

Evelyn King, fifteen, and Sarah Sheehan, sixteen, both of Gloucester, testified she gave them the check to take to the Massachusetts Trust Company. Their nervousness at the bank led to questions and they took Inspectors Augusta and Dorsey to Mrs. DuBois, their "teacher."

Chief Justice Bolster told Mrs. DuBois he did not believe her story after she testified the check was given to her by a Fall River man named Mason and that she thought it good. He held her in $500 when she appealed.

GREATER CITY PLAN URGED BY SULLIVAN

Corporation Counsel Backs Curley Bill; Wealth of District Is Earned in Boston

The wealth of Greater Boston is made in municipal Boston, Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan declared today before the legislative committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

He appeared in behalf of the petition of Mayor Curley asking for the creation of a Greater Boston by the consolidation into one municipality of all cities and towns lying wholly or partly within ten miles of the State House.

Under the provisions of the bill the question of annexation or consolidation would be put to the voters of the cities and towns affected to decide at the State election in November.

Corporation Counsel Sullivan declared more than one-third of the wage-earning class in the suburbs work in Boston. He presented statistics regarding the population, school attendance, tax rates of the communities mentioned.

The bill was opposed by Representative Joseph L. Larson of Everett, Charles F. Shaw of Watertown, Clarence A. Bunker of Wellesley, Van Ness Bates of Brookline and Lincoln Bryant of Milton.

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—Acting under orders of Director of Public Safety Smedley D. The prisoners, all negroes, are said to have been discovered attempting to break into a tailoring establishment.

12-MILE RUM SHIP SEARCH GIVEN O. K.

Treaty Between England and United States Signed; Goes to Senate

Washington, Jan. 23.—The new rum treaty with Great Britain was signed today at the State Department. It permits American search beyond the three-mile limit and permits British vessels to bring ships' stores into American ports under seal.

Senate ratification is required before the new arrangement becomes effective, but there are indications that, pending formal approval, the two governments tacitly will follow a more lenient policy toward each other in dealing with the liquor question—until now one of the most serious to disturb British-American relations in recent years.

Signature of the treaty today meant the realization of one of the long-cherished hopes of the dying Baldwin Ministry in England. The retiring Premier's desire to consummate this step was almost wrecked by the delay of some of the Dominion governments in giving their approval.

ONCE FAMOUS ARTIST PENNILESS IN ATTIC

New York, Jan. 24—Louis Gruner, Spanish artist, whose canvases hang in museums in London, Paris, Berlin and Madrid, today is living in a one-room attic in a West Side house, penniless and friendless and praying for death. He painted Roosevelt, and the former Kaiser once bid $10,000 for his work. Twelve years ago Gruner's New York studio was a rendezvous for society. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Broderick Tower and other noted New Yorkers sat for him.

HOLD 2 SUSPECTS FOR $4,000 ROBBERY

As George Sexton of Clarence street, Roxbury, and Joseph Kelly of Cambridge were leaving the Roxbury Court after having pleaded not guilty to bootlegging charges, they were arrested on suspicion, the police believing they were implicated in the hold-up of a collector in Dartmouth street more than a year ago, when bandits secured $4,000. Police say Harry Hurley of No. 139 Cushing street, Dorchester, who was a collector for M. O'Keefe, when he was robbed a year ago, has identified Sexton as one of the bandits.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE GROWING OF A BACKBONE

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE truth that "many are called but few are chosen" applies to books whether or not it applies to men.

The vast majority of new books are of no special value. But once in a while some book comes along and stands up head and shoulders above its fellows.

Such a book is "Nineteenth Century Evolution and After," by Marshall Dawson.

I do not know who Marshall Dawson is and I think he will consider it a compliment when I say that I do not care. This book is his best photograph, biography and title to nobility.

It is a book that I hope William J. Bryan will read, but I fear will not.

It is a book which, better than any I have seen recently, counteracts one of the most dangerous heresies of the age, that is, the heretical disbelief in evolution.

The Bible may be the word of God. Some people doubt that. But evolution is certainly the method of God.

And it is a question whether it is not more dangerous to doubt God's method than it is to doubt His word.

The Bible says that God created man. Mr. Dawson points out that evolution does not deny this. It simply shows the method of creating man.

The first chapter of this book is most excellently written. It ought to be published in a pamphlet by itself and given wide circulation. This chapter is entitled, "Growing a Backbone."

It outlines the story of life upon the planet. First life existed in backboneless creatures that inhabited the waters. Little by little opportunities were opened for these creatures to develop. Some refused, others were bold enough to accept the challenge. The bold ones survived and the cowards went down.

"It is too often thought," says Mr. Dawson, "that what is moral is the thing customarily done. On the contrary, some response which costs a fresh exercise of moral force is continually demanded. To make sure of this, God and Nature employ, as test, a continually advancing standard of action. The corresponding history of continually advancing response on the part of man is the story of the building of backbone."

Every unit in man's backbone, according to our author, is a triumphant monument erected by Nature to commemorate a valiant decision in some life and death struggle. Our bodies are nothing but a compendium and history of the decisive battles of geologic time.

"Thus," he concludes in a luminous passage, "the Cross was set high on Calvary at the opening of the Christian Era, that young and old might forever see that life is indeed a high and valiant adventure. Thus man's perfected moral backbone is best seen as symbolized in a Cross and as transfiguring the eternal cross of life, winning resurrections out of crucifixions, world without end."

This is a book well worth any man's reading who wants his spiritual nature to advance hand in hand with his intelligence.

All You Possess Is Hope

Keep It Alive; Do Not Let Indolence Overcome You. Hope and Work

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Man is a mental machine. The devils that live in man's mind interfere with the machine.

You have got inside of your head, that white ivory temple, a brain inherited from thousands of different animals that lived on this earth ahead of you.

That wonderfully formed skull from which you look out at the world is simply an expansion and development of the topmost joint in your backbone.

In that developed, physical thinking machine lives the soul which is YOU. And it is constantly at war with the attractions, the temptations, the vices, all the troubles that it has inherited from animal ancestry and savage ancestry through millions of years.

Your fight against evil has got to be a fight carried on inside of your own mind.

The wall that you build around your thinking machinery, around your will, must be a mental wall, built up of regular thoughts, of good thought, suppression of evil, and the exercise of qualities that give results, perseverance, consistency, justice.

Sometimes the building of a wall such as we need is as tedious as was the building of the great Chinese Wall.

The Chinese built that huge wall around their kingdom to keep out the Tartars and other hordes, just as they built the little walls in front of their doors to keep out evil spirits.

Both walls were foolish and useless. For the Tartars came in and ruled China for centuries, just as the evil spirits dodge around the little brick walls and go into the Chinese house.

Your mental building may be as tiresome and slow as the Chinese Wall. But, at least, when the wall is built in your mind it will do the work for which it was built.

This is the season of hope. It is the good time for the man who has been discouraged, whose years of failure, repeated efforts ending in lack of success, have discouraged him. It is the time for him to realize that hope is never lost while man lives, and that as long as a man hopes and tries he CAN build his wall, he can keep out failure and keep down the weaknesses inherited, that grow up in the brain and destroy useful thought, as weeds destroy the useful growth in a garden.

The one thing to keep alive in the mind is HOPE.

Carlyle's wonderful old character, Teufelsdrockh, says: "Man is, properly speaking, based upon Hope; he has no other possession but Hope; this world of his is emphatically the Place of Hope."

As you struggle to keep alive hope and courage, and try to build up inside of your brain such a wall of self-protection as the Chinaman builds outside of his house, remember that WORK alone is worth while.

The worst of the evil spirits that attack us is laziness. Nine-tenths of all the failures could have been successes if they had not been indolent, easily tired by mental work, the only kind that counts.

Laziness, indolence, weakness in mental effort—they are the big trouble.

Idleness makes room for all the other troubles; vices grow where good thoughts are not growing, just as weeds grow when the hoe is idle.

Above all, keep hope and courage alive. They are to man what steam is to the engine and electric force to the dynamo.

It makes beaches filthy. I recommend to thousands of fishermen and lobster fishermen."

The chairman of the committee patted his fur coat up over his ears and promised Mr. Andrew to give the bill his utmost consideration.

Women and Children Are Carried to Safety as Flames Rush Through Garage

Lowell, Jan. 23.—Six women and children were carried down ladders to safety today by firemen from tenements during a blaze which did $100,000 damage to Frank P. Mahoney's garage on First and Second streets.

The tenements from which they were removed in their night clothes were situated directly over the garage. The building is a three-story structure with families living on the second and third floors.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a can in the garage. Eighty automobiles were in the garage at the time. Before a fire department could arrive, nearly all the machines were moved out. A second alarm was sounded when the firemen arrived on the scene.

Ladders were quickly run up to the second and third floor of the building and the work of rescue began. Several families hurried down the stairways in groups as the fire spread through the lower floors.

SAYS DINES KEPT MABEL 'HOPPED'

Film Star Always Made Drunk When With Him, Chauffeur Greer Tells the Police

Los Angeles, Jan. 23.—Courtland S. Dines, wealthy Denver oil man, was shot by Horace Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, because Dines continually kept Mabel drunk when with him.

This sensational testimony was offered in the Greer case by two policemen who questioned Greer immediately after the shooting.

Hired to keep Miss Normand away from Dines' apartment he asserted, as he kept her drunk, Greer told police officers following the shooting.

"He kept Mabel 'hopped up,' the chauffeur told the officers, and I never allowed her to get more than a glass of wine."

WITNESSES FORGETFUL.

The testimony of the officers was given after counsel for Greer accused of assault with intent to kill, had served strong protests. Just [illegible] Hanby admitted the evidence of the officers, however, and took occasion to announce that it was apparent to him that witnesses in the case were not telling all they knew about the shooting and the facts that led to the shooting.

When the officers testified that Greer told them Dines "kept Mabel hopped up," there was a fall to cover just what Greer meant by the words "hopped up."

The officers were closely questioned as to whether Greer meant Miss Normand was given drugs or what he meant that she was simply under the influence of excessive drinking. The officers agreed that to them the words "hopped up" meant the same as "liquored up."

Beginning this Friday, January 25th, the series of daily Thunderbolts will again make its appearance.

These "Jagged Bargains," as one good customer has called them, will run into February—each one differing in merchandise from the other; yet all alike in that they fairly boom with the opportunity of saving.

Watch for "Thunderbolts" every day from now on, through February, for when a "Thunderbolt" of the article you particularly desire is launched you may be sure of a price that will open your eyes in wonder.

Quantities are planned to last throughout the day. Last year the appreciation of "Thunderbolts" increased so from day to day that it was difficult to estimate the number who wished to share in the values. Quantities sometimes sold out before the day was over.

ANDERSON SPLIT TOLD BY CHECKS PECORA SAYS

Phillips Grilled in Trial of Anti-Saloon League Superintendent

[illegible]

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman, chief of counsel for Anderson, resuming his cross-fire attack on the witness, exhibited a bundle of canceled checks and asked the witness to identify them, which he did. [illegible] were added and [illegible] total $18,800. Phillips previously [illegible] he received only $14,400 [illegible] checks [illegible] Whitman attempted today [illegible] the admission that he had received all the money and had not "split" any amount with Anderson.

DIDN'T KEEP ALL.

Phillips admitted that the checks showed that he had received $18,800, but stuck to the assertion that he had not been permitted to keep all the money.

Phillips declared that $14,400 was all he actually got and denied that he was afraid to admit he got more because of being prosecuted by the government for "cheating" on income tax.

Pecora then cleared some of the accusations that Whitman had made against him yesterday. In regard to the "stealing" of war secrets, Pecora brought out that in 1916, before America's entrance into the war, Phillips was employed by a man named Moore, a representative of American munition manufacturers. Phillips was shown to have had no actual part in the commission of any deal.

ENDORSED BY ANDERSON.

Pecora then took the bundle of checks and exhibited to the court that some of them bore the endorsements of Anderson under those of Phillips. Phillips said he had been in the habit of receipting for the checks and when he gave Anderson money he merely endorsed them and handed them to him. The checks endorsed by Anderson, Mr. Pecora declared, were enough to make up the difference in which Phillips had been confused when answering Whitman's question.

ENTRIES TRANSFERRED.

William M. Potter, former head bookkeeper of the Anti-Saloon League, testified that at Anderson's direction he had transferred entries in the league books and written checks [illegible] Anderson which were charged [illegible] account of O. Bertsal Phillips, collector.

Shown the league books and cancelled checks, Potter identified the transferred entries and checks he said had been made at Anderson's direction. The checks bore the endorsements of Anderson and notations that they were "in settlement of the Anti-Saloon League account with William H. Anderson, charged to salary account of O. B. Phillips."

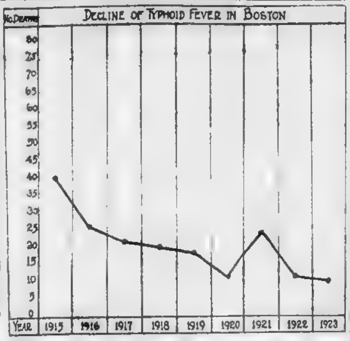
HOW TO KEEP WELL By Dr. Mahoney

By DR. F. X. MAHONEY,
Boston Health Commissioner.

If there is any typhoid fever in your neighborhood get vaccinated.

A few drops of typhoid toxin injected into your arm will cause your body to develop the same antidote to the typhoid toxin that would be present if you had recovered from the disease. The vaccination will prevent you for several years at least, from taking the disease.

Dr. Mahoney.



When a person has typhoid fever the typhoid germs grow and multiply in his body, forming a so-called "toxin" or poison, and giving rise to intestinal ulcers and other destructive changes in the body. If the person does not die, it is because his body gradually produces an antidote to this toxin and thus enables the person to overcome the effects of the organisms and to destroy them.

The toxin used for vaccination is manufactured by the United States government, and by various States, including Massachusetts. It is prepared by growing typhoid germs artificially, killing them by heat and making a carefully sterilized mixture.

Vaccination practically eliminated typhoid fever in the World War. You may feel sick for some time within twenty-four hours after the inoculation, but frequently there is no unpleasant reaction.

If you are somewhere where the source of milk or water is unknown, don't drink either milk or water unless it is boiled or sterilized. Raw garden stuff of unknown origin should not be eaten; eat only freshly cooked hot food, and wash your hands before eating.

CARRYING AGENTS

Typhoid germs occur in the discharges of a patient. Garden stuff, clams, oysters and shellfish may be the carrying agent. Vegetables may be contaminated from soil that is impregnated with typhoid germs. Shellfish may be contaminated by sewage containing these bacteria. Flies or other insects may spread the disease by walking over food after walking upon soiled clothes or bedding in a typhoid fever patient's room.

Water from a well, stream or pond which has been contaminated by tyhpoid bacteria may be used to wash milk cans or for drinking purposes, and thus the disease may be spread.

If a member of the family should be stricken with typhoid fever, every member should be vaccinated at once. The patient must be isolated and have a nurse or attendant who does not come into contact with the rest of the family. Flies must be kept out of the room and the room itself must be kept scrupulously clean. No visitors should be allowed. The patient must have separate bedding and dishes. No water used for washing utensils in the sickroom must be put in the sink. Clothing and anything which may come in contact with the patient must be covered with a disinfectant solution before being washed or disposed of.

The following may be used as disinfectant solutions:

Corrosive sublimate solution—Dissolve corosive sublimate in water in the proportion of one 7½-grain tablet to each pint of water.

Carbolic acid solution—Disolve pure carbolic acid in water, five tablespoonfuls to one pint of water.

Compound cresol solution—Two tablespoonfuls of compound cresol to a pint of water.

ANSWER—Yes, if neglected. If a cold lasts more than two days, even though apparently not severe, you should consult your physician.

Dear Doctor—Why is it that some foods do not agree with me, such as eggs, strawberries, etc? Are they poisonous? J. T. L.
Derry, N. H.

Answer: Such foods are not poisonous in themselves, but often they may be harmful to certain persons whose bodies have what is known as a "protein sensitivity" to such foods. This is a condition like hay fever and may be overcome by treatment. Of course too much of any food may make one sick.

Dear Doctor—Is the cold air good for everyone? MRS. J. T. K.
Houlton, Me.

Answer: Cold air stimulates and acts as a tonic. Cold fresh air in your room at night makes up for much of the impure air that many must breathe during the day on account of their occupation. However, we should not allow ourselves to be unduly exposed to the cold, unless properly protected and away from drafts. This applies especially to the young, the feeble, and the aged.

RIOTING BREAKS OUT IN BRITISH RAIL STRIKE

Attempt to Wreck Train Reported Near Glasgow; the Strike-Breakers Stoned

London, Jan. 23.—The first disorder in the national strike of locomotive firemen and engineers was reported from Northampton today.

A fireman was stoned. Strike-breakers were attacked with stones and other missles at Glasgow. There was evidence that an attempt was made to wreck a train between Glasgow and Dundee.

It was expected the managers of the railway companies would meet the strike leaders this afternoon, but the strikers failed to authorize their executives to hold such a conference.

According to the companies, train service is improving. It was claimed this afternoon that the service was 40 per cent. normal.

J. H. Thomas today resigned as secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen because he accepted the post of Secretary of State for the Colonies in the new MacDonald Cabinet.

HELD FOR FAILING TO STOP AFTER CRASH

Try This Way To Get Relief From Head Colds

Nothing to Swallow—You Just Melt a Little in a Spoon and Breathe in the Healing Vapors.

To stop a head cold, try this simple, direct method. Melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the penetrating Vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc. Also put a little up each nostril and snuff well back.

Another method is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Mothers prefer Vicks for their children because it avoids so much internal dosing. It can be used with perfect safety on the youngest child.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made syrup.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COHAN QUITS SUMMER SHOWS AT THE TREMONT; CANCELS LEASE

TROUBLES WITH EQUITY SHOP BLAMED FOR ACT

George M. Cohan is making good his threats.

"If the Equity Shop stays on the stage, I get off," said the playwright-producer,star.

The Equity Shop is staying and dispatches today from New York indicate Cohan is going. One of his first steps is the cancelling of his lease on the Tremont Theatre, Boston, where for the past three Summers he has staged musical shows for the entire Summer season before taking them into New York.

Geo. M. Cohan

Mr. Cohan returned the new lease to the theatre owners unsigned. He told the owners that with conditions so uncertain on the stage, he would not feel justified in renewing the lease.

The cancelling of the Tremont Theatre lease, it is expected, will shortly be followed by Cohan giving up the Grand Opera House in Chicago and the closing out of his holdings in the Middle West.

Recently he closed "Little Nellie Kelly" in Chicago, while the original company was still playing to capacity business.

Cohan's musical shows in Boston at the Tremont played to capacity audiences from the time the theatre opened in May until the season closed in October.

Lighting Corporations Want to Sell Stocks to Users, if Any Is Left

Gas and electric light corporations of Massachusetts are desirous of sharing their profits with their customers, the legislative Committee on Power and Light was informed today.

The statement was made by W Rodman Peabody, Boston attorney who with other representatives of the corporation lighting interests appeared before the committee.

They urged the enactment of a bill authorizing lighting companies to sell stock to customers upon such terms and conditions as would be approved by the State Public Utilities Department. The law now allows companies to sell stock to employes.

Mr. Peabody said the plan has been put into effect by the Greenfield Electric Light Company and is successful. He said customers obtained their stock when the preferred holders gave up their right to take up the entire issue.

Redeemable as a whole, or in part by lot, on 30 days' notice on any interest date to and including January 1, 1925 at 105 and interest, with successive reductions in redemption price of ½ of 1% during each three years' period thereafter; also redeemable for the sinking fund at 100 and interest. A semi-annual Sinking Fund is provided to retire $7,500,000 Series A bonds prior to maturity through redemption of 2½% per annum by purchase in the market at or below 100 and interest or, if not so obtainable, by call at that price.

Application will be made in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange

Mr. Louis H. Egan, President of Union Electric Light and Power Company of Illinois, and of Union Electric Light and Power Company (of Missouri), summarizes as follows from a letter to us:

FIRST MORTGAGE LIEN

These bonds will be secured by direct first mortgage lien on the entire fixed property of Union Electric Light and Power Company of Illinois, which owns a modern steam electric generating station located on the Mississippi River, directly opposite St. Louis and adjacent to ample coal supplies. The plant is designed for an ultimate capacity of 300,000 kilowatts, of which 60,000 kilowatts are in operation and an additional 65,000 kilowatts under construction. The property securing these $10,000,000 bonds will represent expenditures of $15,000,000. The North American Company owns all the Common Stock of the company.

The plant, constructed to meet the power requirements of the St. Louis district, will be leased for a period beyond the maturity of the bonds to Union Electric Light and Power Company (of Missouri), which does substantially all of the central station electric light and power business in the City of St. Louis and, directly or through affiliated companies, in 13 counties in Missouri, serving more than one-third of the entire population of the State. The lease will provide for rentals which include taxes, depreciation of nearly 3%, and a fixed return based on capital expenditures which will amount to nearly two and one-fifth times maximum annual interest charges on the present issue, comprising the company's total funded debt.

In accordance with the accounting procedure prescribed by the Missouri Public Service Commission, the rentals are a deduction from operating income of Union Electric Light and Power Company (of Missouri), payable before determination of net income applicable to that company's fixed charges.

Both lessor and lessee are included in The North American Company system, and are controlled by that company.

THE LESSEE

Earnings of Union Electric Light and Power Company (of Missouri) for the two years ended November 30, 1923, were as follows:

	1923	1922
Gross Earnings	$14,370,504	$12,094,710
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes	7,933,773	7,101,027
Net Earnings available for Interest, Depreciation and Dividends	$6,436,731	$4,993,683
Total Interest Charges	1,115,611	1,155,157
Balance	$5,321,120	$3,838,526

The above net earnings averaged over 5 times average total interest charges, and after deducting annual appropriations for depreciation of nearly 3.8% of property valuation (in addition to liberal maintenance expenditures) averaged more than 3⅔ times such charges.

Union Electric Light and Power Company (of Missouri) has outstanding $9,000,000 of 7% Preferred Stock and 650,000 shares of Common Stock without par value. Dividends have been paid without interruption for seventeen years on the Common Stock of the company and its predecessors. The holders of the Preferred Stock number more than 10,000, of whom about 74% are customers of the company.

We offer these bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to approval of legal matters by our counsel and to approval of the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Price 95¾ and Interest. To Yield 5.80%

STELLA DALLAS

By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. They visit a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella at Millhampton. Stella starts a flirtation with Alfred Munn. The leading women of the town begin to drop her. Stephen, deciding he can never go back to her, starts a divorce suit. The story then goes back to Mrs. Morrison's marriage to her aged millionaire suitor. The latter dies and Stephen confesses his love to the widow. Stella and Laurel get in with a society set at a Summer hotel and Laurel goes canoeing with Richard Grosvenor.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY
Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

"It Would Hurt Her, of Course, Poor Kid"

"SHE'D be under steam this minute, admired, desired, flags flying, sun shining. 'As long as you're alive.' Those were her words. Oh, why couldn't I whiff out now? Say, why couldn't I feel a little dizzy and topple over out of the window, down there on the concrete—it's four stories—and clear the job up quick—right now, and no more talk?

"No, I can't. I'm afraid. I haven't the nerve. I haven't the guts. It might only smash me up. Poison would be better, or gas, or a revolver. Poison—what kind? Gas—how long would it take? A revolver—where were they bought? How did you load them? Oh, it would be horrid—horrid! I wonder if I dare."

Stella got down from the window seat and went over to the bed. The early light of dawn was in the room now, like gray smoke. She stood looking down at Laurel through the thick intangible haze for a long time—for a minute, for two minutes, for three minutes perhaps.

"Ought I? Oh, gracious, ought I?" she whispered.

The memory of a certain other early morning, when she stood thus and gazed down upon the sweetly sleeping, defenseless child, recurred to Stella. Then, also, as now, she had whispered, "Ought I? Oh, gracious, ought I?" It was when the doctors were due to arrive in a few hours to perform an operation upon Lollie—years ago, a slight operation, only tonsils—but they were going to make her lamp and lifeless, and cut her with a knife.

"Ought I again cut her with a knife?"

It would hurt her, of course—poor kid—at first. Her face would get all white with horror and dismay. "Put she'd be rid of me—free, and after a while she'd forget it. She's young, she'd get over it. Or would it also be a story—a tale, to whisper about behind Laurel's back. 'Her mother committed suicide!' 'You don't mean it!' 'And her father's father, too, so I've heard.' 'Really.' 'Runs in the blood on both sides.' 'How shocking!'"

Years ago Stella had read in a magazine somewhere that suicidal tendencies were inherited. She recalled it now. Heavens! What if Laurel should grow up and read that, too? Good Lord, it might make her afraid for herself if it was on both sides! She must be saved that horror. A wave of relief swept over Stella.

"I must think of some other way." She went back to the window-seat again. "Oh, how scared I was! What a enivelling coward I am!"

All the next day she submitted compromise after compromise to Laurel. She would keep a servant if only Laurel would go to New York. She would keep two servants, a companion; two companions, return to an apartment hotel, if only—if only—But Laurel simply shrugged her shoulders.

Again and again that day Stella was forced to face the unwelcome consideration of discovering some method of w[illegible] out that might not arouse [illegible] Stopping down [illegible] impossible, making [illegible] sleeping powders [illegible] be done. But, oh, [illegible] that was [illegible] to take [illegible] morality. There must be some other way.

It was sometime during the course of the second night, when she was wearied and exhausted almost to the breaking point, that the "some other way" flashed across Stella's mental field of vision. The first consciousness of it made her feel sicker and hollow inside for a moment. It was like having a messenger suddenly run amok in the room with you pardon, just when you were settling yourself in the electric chair.

Trembling, anxiously, she groped her way across the hall to her desk in the front room. If only she could find the address. It was on a card. She had thrown the card away. It must be somewhere. Oh, what if Laurel in one of her raids upon the cluttered desk had torn it up, tossed it aside? What if it was ashes now? She had no other clue.

If the card was lost, she was lost. "Help me find it. Help me find it." It was about the size of a calling-card, a little larger, very grimy, because she had carried it about in her shopping bag for a long while. Here! This looked like it! Yes, this was it! No, it wasn't! Yes, it was. Yes! Yes! She had found it. She held it up close to the electric light.

ALFRED MUNN
173 North Bank Street,
Hilton, Mass.

She'd go to bed now. She'd go to sleep. "Thanks, oh, thanks," she said on her knees! In minutes later, "Do please help me bring the business out all right."

Stella as well as Laurel was sleeping soundly and sweetly at dawn on the second morning.

Stella set forth in quest of [illegible] any body else.

Not that she [illegible] such a thing. It wasn't a bit like marrying Ed, but just hoping so hard made her think of all sorts of catastrophes. Perhaps he'd moved away from Boston entirely. Perhaps he was dead, or perhaps—what if she wasn't attractive to him any more? She was a whole year older, and a whole year after you're forty—well!

He'd find her alimony attractive, anyway, she guessed. Ed hadn't been very successful in his various business ventures. But easy-look here there wouldn't be any alimony would there, if she married again? Hadn't there been some such clause? She had never given it much thought because she had been so dead sure she never was going to marry again.

Gracious, she hadn't thought of that. Well, never mind, she could contribute something in the way of funds.

That was over a year ago, when she had chanced to run across Ed one afternoon in the lobby of a moving picture theatre. She hadn't seen him since. She hadn't heard from him since. He might feel entirely different about her now. A year was an awfully long time. Perhaps he wouldn't want to marry her now. Perhaps he'd never really wanted to marry her.

He had always laughed when he had suggested it, and she had always laughed back when she had refused his crazy offers. For years it had been sort of a huge joke on both sides. She guessed Ed would be surprised to be taken seriously all of a sudden. She did

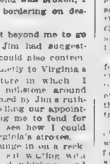
WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

JIM hadn't offered me a single excuse for this action in breaking his engagement. He hadn't said he was sorry. He hadn't told me where he was going or with whom. He had treated me with a discourtesy which I ventured to guess he hadn't dared show Pat and Virginia. I felt they'd know where he was or that some sort of explanation would have been offered them.



Ann Lisle

I wondered bitterly if they were laughing at me—or pitying me.

Mechanically I took down the receiver and called Dreamwold.

When I called Dreamwold on the telephone after Jim had so coldly told me that his engagement to spend the week-end was broken, I was in a mood bordering on desperation.

I felt it wasn't beyond me to go there alone as Jim had suggested. If I did, I could also contend quite calmly to Virginia a plans for a future in which I should not be a nuisance around Jim's neck. Shamed by Jim's ruthlessness in cancelling our appointment and leaving me to fend for myself, I didn't see how I could carry any of Virginia's atrocities.

Meaning to plunge in on a reckless impulse I sat waiting with beating heart and whirling mind for an answer to my telephone call. When it came, I recognized Virginia's voice. And some instinct of caution held me back from saying anything more than: "Hello, Jeanie. This is Anne."

Her reply came in a tone of courtesy which I resentfully interpreted as pity—but it was at least pity without scorn.

"Hello, Anne. It's a shame we're not going to see you over the week-end. But I understand——"

"I don't——" I began bluntly, but Virginia, intent on her own thoughts, interrupted in a way which hauled me up short.

"I know how thought I was are, my dear, and how scrupulous about engagements. Of course, you'd say you don't like breaking up our plans on such short notice. But I understand. Naturally you must entertain Ramon Cordova on his first week-end in this country. I'd have insisted on your coming here. But you know how well I like the fair Rosa. And under the circumstances our family-conference wouldn't have much to offer them. But I'm not letting you off. I didn't have a chance to say much to Jim. But you must tell him for me that I'll expect you next week."

"All right," I said flatly. "I'll tell him. But you'd better speak to him yourself."

"Oh, I will. I know how Jim insists on having all the honor that he considers his due. I won't let the invitations come second hand. And as you know how important it seems to me to have an honest talk about your affairs you can be sure I'll insist on Jim coming this time. Little Phoebe's getting sweeter every day. You'll enjoy seeing her, Anne."

"Of course," I replied weakly. "I'll look forward to that."

Virginia chuckled.

"We have to offer you something sweet to take the bad taste of the conference out of your mouth, don't we?" she asked. "Then I'll look for you and to see you next Friday or Saturday noon at the latest. Do your best by the Cordova. But I needn't say that I know you've never failed Jim in a business matter. Good by, Anna."

Hanging up the receiver I sat staring across the office in the same numb spirit I'd shown all through the talk with Virginia. Gradually it came to me that her business sense had saved me from betraying my mood.

I don't want to end? I can feel a trembling in myself in the midst of my office. Then gradually it emerges from the jumble of words which had been in past the barrier of my lips. I faced the truth.

My apprenticeship in the world of business experience in the world of men and affairs had left me where I was the day before leaving college. I was not at all the girl of the days of complete old fashioned domestic woman of ages for.

Above all I want Jim. Of course I want him to want me as he used to do. But I have an abiding faith that my feelings will command his scorn.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, all men say: "Alas, WHERE shall we find a 'modest violet' amongst women? For a simple damsel full of sweetness and humility is the desire of every man's heart!"

Yet, alas, where orchids abound, a violet sigheth unobserved. And a brown sparrow is not SEEN of men, when a Bird of Paradise passeth.

Wherefore, then, dost thou condemn a damsel that she arrayeth herself as a living-poster, and goeth forth painted as with house-paint?

For, lo, NOT through his stomach or his sentiment is the way to a man's heart, but through his eyes and imagination.

Go to! She that "putteth on the Chihuahua" and "throweth the tero" shall be transported in limousines and dined at exclusive places; and she that weareth fake pearls shall in time be offered real ones.

For, unto her that SEEMETH to have, shall be given.

But she that weareth her last year's hat and is gowned in a "made-over" shall be guided to the cheap table d'hote, and her reward shall be a flivver and a picture show.

She that maketh a good showing and filleth her parlor divans with dubs and with dumb-bells, shall be accounted "popular," and shall soon find a Sheik amongst them.

But she that refuseth to dance with bores and is not at home to chair-warmers shall appear lonesome, and be accounted a "left-over."

She that relieth her charms and bideth her talents under a bushel of modesty shall be admired by matrons and loved by others. But she that ADVERTISETH herself and vaunteth her conquests shall be followed by their sons SELAH!

Thursday—Little Girl's Dress

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

JUST how do you teach Rightness and Wrongness to that youngster of yours, Pal? Do you try to sensitize him to Rightness and Wrongness in general, or do you chop human conduct into hard chunks and hand them to him labeled "Good" or "Bad"?

I am asking you these questions because I have just come from the Dalton home. The Dalton parents believe in labels. They don't take their young hopefuls by the hand and say, "Now, look here, little Bill, this is Life. Life is a strange thing. We all make mistakes about Life. We all see it differently. You're not going to see it as I am seeing it, and I'm not going to see it as you see it. But we can both try to play square with what we feel is right. We're going to try to do our best. That is all anyone can do."

No, the Daltons adopt no such free and easy methods in dealing with morality. Grimly they inform young William—"THIS IS RIGHT. THIS IS WRONG. If you do Wrong things you are in the grip of the Devil."

"But there ain't no Devil!" pipes young Bill, the modernist. "My teacher says there ain't no Devil, cause I just her."

"Your teacher is a wicked woman and I shall report her to the principal!" snaps Mrs. Dalton. "There most certainly IS a Devil. It is the Devil who makes people drink liquor and play cards"——

"But Mrs. Stewart plays cards 'n' she's a nice lady 'n'" you borrow sugar from her," protests the analytical William.

"Don't you dare answer back another word, William Dalton," announces Mother, evading argument by time honored methods. "Playing cards is the work of the Devil, whoever does it. And dancing and these horrible petting parties and"—— Carefully they cut life into hard chunks and label them "Good" or Bad." At first, despite his arguments, little Bill believes them. But soon he has ventured into a world which does not believe in literal devils and bob-tempered gods, a world where really nice people dance and play cards and even take forbidden sips of bootleg, what is going to happen to Bill's moral values? They are going to be completely swamped. Will he be able to build up that moral sensitiveness which his parents should have given him in place of hard and fast judgments? I wonder.

It's a dangerous thing to grab God's job and try to meddle with the gearing of a human soul. A very wise man has said: "ANY PERSON DICTATING A PIECE OF CONDUCT TO A CHILD OR ANYONE ELSE AS THE WILL OF GOD, OR ABSOLUTELY RIGHT, SHOULD BE TREATED WITH AS BLASPHEMER, AS INDEED GUILTY OF THE UNPARDONABLE SIN AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST."

Think it over.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

A MAN never really enjoys life until he has a valet. If you get a good one he can be more comfort to you than a paid-off mortgage.

A VALET is the fellow who gets up and closes the window on cold mornings.

HE also draws the water in the tub and if you request it, he'll even take the bath for you.

WHEN your sweetheart rings in the morning, your valet is supposed to tell her you're not up yet when you haven't even come home.

BUT of course some valets are so high-toned that they have to have a valet.

IT must be wonderful to be so wealthy that you can hire a guy to shut off the alarm clock in the morning.

A VALET is also supposed to mix your drinks for you. If you haven't anything in the house to mix, it's up to him to go out and locate a reliable bootlegger.

JAMES always tastes the first drink to see whether it's whiskey or wood alcohol. If it kills him, then it's wood alcohol.

WHEN a thing like this happens, you have to get a new valet.

ALSO a new bootlegger.

ONE guy lost seven valets before he found a quart of good Scotch

DON'T LET YOURSELF BE SOLD SOMETHING YOU DON'T WANT.

Do you get Value received for the money you spend?

Or are you an easy mark for every wind that seeks to blow money out of your pocketbook for one cause or another?

Are you constantly brought up standing by a realization of overdrawn accounts and get some little debts made up only to run in deeper on occasion presents itself?

Do you have moments of consideration when you take stock and you begin to figure just how much in debt you are if you had to pay all of your debts at once?

Do you say you'll not buy another thing til the start is clear?

Well, why do you not keep your good resolutions?

Just because you are so weak kneed that you will let a perfect stranger wheedle money out of you for books and what not, by dint of persistence and a form of closing in on you which that stranger is trained to do by his or her superiors.

Don't you know it is the business of a certain type of salesman to get your money for the product he sells whether you think you want it or not?

Have some mind of your own and if you are determined enough you can keep your money and your self respect, by deciding on your own affairs.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

For a Sunday wedding, to start at 4 p. m., is it proper for the bride to wear a gray dress and the groom a tuxedo?

(2) For the best man, the groom considers having his friend, as he does not think it would be proper to have a younger brother at the age of twenty-one, act as best man. He says if his younger brother was married, then it would be proper.

(3) My younger sister will be my maid of honor. She is younger than my fiancee's sister. Whom do you think I should choose? My sister is engaged, while the other is not. H R H

YES, proper but not conventional. The conventional dress would be white for the bride and evening clothes for the groom

(2) It would be proper and the very best form for the groom to ask his brother to serve as best man. The fact that he is younger and is not married makes no difference.

(3) ou should choose your sister.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly advise me what is good form in a personal card for a young lady? Is there a preferred shape for the card and style of lettering? Or, is this all a matter of taste? R. S.

THE visiting card of a lady is usually from about 2¾ to 3½ inches wide, by 3 to 3¾ inches high. Shaded block letters are the form of engraving most often used. It is excellent form to have the address in the lower right hand corner, engraved in smaller letters than the name. The card itself is of white unglazed bristol board, of medium thickness. It is best form not to have abbreviations or abbreviations (except, of course, Mr. and Mrs.) on a visiting card

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am invited to a ten-year wedding anniversary and am at a loss what kind of present to send. MR. READER

YOU are not a good Irishman, or you would remember that the ten years is "tin."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) When mother and daughter register at a hotel should they register as "Mrs. J. C. Black and daughter" or Mrs. J. C. Black and Miss Martha Black?"

(2) When the plan of the hotel is European do you pay the waiter after each meal, and is the room settled for at the desk when you check out?

(3) Do you keep your hat on at breakfast, lunch and dinner?

(4) After the first meal at the hotel, should you continue to wait for the waiter to show you to your table or do you occupy the same table as before? B. P.

THEY should register Mrs. John C. Black, Washington

Miss Martha Black, Washington

(2) You sign the check for each meal with your name and your number and pay the entire bill as you leave.

(3) At breakfast and luncheon you wear your hat, and you wear your hat at dinner, unless you wear evening clothes.

(4) That varies in different hotels. You should inquire the custom at that particular hotel. You may request a "stationary" table if you wish

WBF STATION GETS IN WAY OF LOCALS

United Fruit Is Working Hard to Prevent Interference With Broadcasts

WBF, the United Fruit Company's station on the Board of Trade Building in Boston, now appears to be causing some interference with broadcasting locally.

This station never uses 450 meters, and its transmission apparatus is the very latest in ICW, yet partly because of its location and partly because of a harmonic around 300 meters, it causes interference in many receivers.

The 300 meter harmonic is believed to be caused by the Custom House Tower, which re-radiates at this natural period.

To the credit of the United Fruit Co. it should be said that they have shown a praiseworthy readiness to do all in their power to prevent interference with broadcasting.

INTERFERENCE LOG FOR JAN. 22

(All interference logged on 450 meters unless otherwist specified.)

8:00 p. m.—On watch. Static light.

In spite of the cold weather, receiving conditions did not seem to improve last night. KDKA and WCAP came through fairly well, as did WOO, but little was forthcoming from longer distances.

The Listener

The only Radio Girl Scout troop reported so far is that of KDKA, Pittsburgh. Over 5,000 girls, many of them in New England, belong, and the business is transacted by mail, answers to the girls' letters being made over the radio.

A not inconsiderable part of the cost of upkeep of the bigger broadcasting stations is that of giving publicity to the advance programs. At least two stations whose programs are published in the American frequently telegraph very detailed programs in order to have them appear in time in the paper. WLW in Cincinnati publishes a good sized magazine every week containing much other matter besides the program.

CW transmitters may be great transmitters for the amateurs, but I have got a howl coming against this bird in Atlantic whose set is so powerful he blots out everything on my entire scale. The click he produces in my receivers is so bad it can be heard at the other end of the house.

Is there any significance in the fact that the Secretary of War was chosen to speak at WCAP on owning your own home?

Freaky conditions in the ether are always a source of wonder and many peculiar results are obtained. Recently it took all the power of my set to bring in WEAF with its new transmitter and increased power, and then it was only fair. At the same time it was easy to bring in clearly on one tube Bellows Falls, Vt., Lockport, N. Y., and other stations using much less power than WEAF.

Radio Receiving Conditions Tonight

Radio receiving conditions will be good from the north, south, and southwest tonight. Chicago and Great Lakes stations should come in fairly well as should stations in the Middle West.

RADIO MAN WHO GOT S. O. S. SIGNALS

(International Newsreel Photo.)

The coastwise liner Henry R. Mallory arrived in New York carrying twenty persons, one a woman, from the Danish freighter Normannia, which had sent out signals of distress. The wireless appeals for help were picked up by the Mallory, enroute from Galveston to New York. The Normannia was located, in a sinking condition, and small boats were put out from the Mallory to remove the crew of the stranded vessel. Photo shows wireless operator, Donald Ryder of the Mallory, who was at his post when the S. O. S. flashed from the Normannia.

FINE SOLDERING IMPORTANT ON ANY SET

Electric Iron Best, With a Fine Flux; Strip Metal Rather Than Wire

Apparently the simplest job in the building of a set is the soldering operation. It is quite true that a small amount of experience will be all that is necessary to produce a commendable job. There are, however, a few important points to observe.

An electric soldering iron is much to be preferred to the flame-heated coppers. A uniform high heat is essential. The heat of the iron must be high enough so that the parts to be soldered are brought up to a high heat quickly and the solder must flow freely. Sluggish or pasty solder on a joint is worse than useless.

The heat from the iron must do three things: First—Raise the heat of the part to be soldered quickly to a degree just below the melting point of the solder; second—evaporate the flux; third—flow the solder.

WHAT THE FLUX DOES.

The second requirement is essential. The flux must be dissipated. Flux is used to free the metals of all corrosion or oxide. This action is hastened by the application of heat. After serving this purpose, all excess must be driven off in gases, not vaporized and scattered.

Paste fluxes are not suitable for radio or electrical work. No flux having an oil, fat or grease body will do at all. These fats require too high and too long an application of heat to dissipate them. These fats become liquid with the application of heat and have the ability in a highly liquid state to cover vast surfaces, consequently they flow as the heat creeps along the conducting medium, saturate insulating materials and creep under nuts and screws, where, when again cool, they set up intense corrosion.

In a recent experiment a small particle of well-known greasy flux was placed on the end of a piece of bus bar, and the soldering iron was applied for fifteen seconds. Examination disclosed flux sixteen inches from the end and the entire sixteen inches was covered with a thin film of flux.

ROSIN NOT ALWAYS GOOD.

The objection to rosin is the intense and active corrosion of the soldering iron and the requirement of very high heat to dissipate. Rosin will flow over metal and solder will adhere to and flow over the rosin, producing a very poor electrical joint and one without strength.

If you must use rosin, as many manufacturers recommend, dissolve it with alcohol to a consistency of thin maple syrup. Use plenty of heat. Muriatic acid "cut" with zinc and well diluted with water, used sparingly, is safe and satisfactory. Yeagers salts, well diluted, form the most satisfactory flux. All flux must be used sparingly.

Strip solder is more convenient than wire solder. Use only the solder that will adhere to the iron. Do not apply solder with one hand and the iron with the other. Pick up the solder with your iron. Keep the tip of your iron clean and "tinned" with a thin coat of solder.

Bolton; Peter Koclan, a theological student, Alan Clark; Maya Zemanova, an actress from the State Theatre in Prague, Marian Code; Doctor Votova, a physician, Frank Voichovitch. Place, a small country parsonage in Bohemia. Time, the present.

The stage shows the courtyard of the parsonage. To the right is a wing of the house with a door down stage leading to the first floor apartments, and an outside stairway which leads to a balcony running the full length of the house on the upstage side which is unseen by the audience. A small window is at the top of the stairway. The house has a low pitch roof. The house is of gray stucco. Running along the back of the stage is a fence in which is a gate letting out on the highroad. To the left at a distance is the spire of the church. Through the gateway can be seen the distant hills.

The first act takes place just about sunset of a warm Autumn day.

The second act is in the evening a few days later.

The third act occurs in the early morning, a week later than the action of the second act.

"The Clouds" is the first regular production of the Boston Stage Society for this season, and has been playing at The Barn, No. 36 Joy street, Boston, during the week beginning January 7. It is to be followed by five other regular bills this season, the next one being "The Sea Gull," by Anton Tchekov, to be produced early in February.

Boston Stage Society is organized for the purpose of experimenting in dramatic art and to encourage young students in all the arts by giving them an opportunity to present their work before a small membership audience.

In order that we may extend the work of the society, we invite any of the public interested to join with us. We are working out problems in lighting, setting, costume, acting and directing, and in order that we may broaden the scope of our work we must have a larger support.

We extend to everyone interested an invitation to visit the Barn. Those desiring to become members may have application blanks forwarded to them by applying to the secretary. They will then become part of the supporting audience and are eligible to all further activities of the society for the season.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Always count at least ten before you say, "it can't be done."

The reply given by Judge Gary and other steel leaders when urged to abolish the twelve-hour day, used to be, "it can't be done." Then followed what apparently were to the steel leaders themselves convincing reasons why it would be impossible, why it would be ruinous to attempt to adopt the eight-hour day.

We all know what has happened since. Public opinion compelled the steelmasters to act.

And, instead of ruin, there shortly came the declaration of an "extra" dividend for the United States Steel Corporation!

By the way, Judge Gary has in his office an illuminated motto, "It can be done."

Events have proved it.

You may recall that when Louis Brandeis, years ago, declared that the railroads of the country save at least a million dollars a day by introducing greater efficiency, the head went up from railway operators, "It can't be done."

Since then the railway managers have introduced efficiency to save far more than a million dollars a day. The improvement which has been effected in railroading in the United States during the last five years has been phenomenal. Events have proved that it could be done, despite the railwaymen themselves didn't realize it.

* * *

A great many employers at the present day declare, when the suggestion is made that they introduce profit-sharing in their business, "it can't be done."

True, no plan has yet been devised which had been unanimously accepted as ideal. There is still much groping and searching, still much trouble.

Nevertheless, a larger number of corporations each year demonstrate that it can be done.

"It can't be done" has been the favorite cry of our anthracite coal barons for years.

Unless they drastically change their tactics, they are destined to learn that many things can be done which they have tried to make believe can't be done. The public will also learn to brand the same way as it took the steel-masters in hand and will put them through their paces unless they adopt as their motto, "It can be done."

The problem of high rents is one of the most serious afflicting millions and millions of people of this country today. There is a nation-wide demand for lower rents, and it will be met in every forum and substance of the excuse given by interested parties.

Without pausing to be able to state definitely or dogmatically just how and when it will be done, I know that by and by not only will rents be lowered, but some form of readjustment will come whereby a great many persons will be relieved of the burden of paying rents and will be enabled to become their own landlords. Progress is already being made in this direction at many centers, and one can foresee the day when mortgaging will become distinctly unfashionable.

Do not most of us who are dissatisfied with out lot, who are dissatisfied with the progress we have made, indulge overmuch in coddling ourselves and neglect to whip ourselves across the winning post?

Yes, it is a good plan for all of us to count ten before meekly claiming, "it can't be done."

DILLON, READ, BOND OFFERING

A syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Inc., and Spencer, Trask & Co. are offering $10,000,000 Union Electric Light & Power Company 5% first mortgage bonds, 5½ per cent., series A, due January 1, 1954.

These bonds will be secured by a direct first mortgage lien on the entire fixed property of the Union Electric Light & Power Company in Illinois, which owns a modern steam electric generating station located on the Mississippi River designed for an ultimate capacity of 300,000 kilowatts, of which 60,000 kilowatts are in operation and additional 60,000 under construction.

The plans to meet the power requirements of the St. Louis district will be leased for a period beyond the maturity of the bonds to the Union Electric Light & Power Company (of Missouri), which does substantially all the central station electric light and power business in the city of St. Louis, and directly or through affiliated companies serves more than one-third of the entire population of the State. The lease will provide for rentals which include taxes, depreciation or nearly 8 per cent. and a fixed return based on capital expenditures which will amount to nearly $1.15 times maximum annual interest charges on the present issue, comprising the company's funded debt.

Union Electric Light & Power Company of Missouri has outstanding $9,000,000 7 per cent. preferred stock and $850,000 shares of common stock without par value. Dividends have been paid without interruption for 17 years on the common stock of the company and its predecessors.

A semi-annual sinking fund is provided which will retire $7,000,000 of the bonds prior to maturity.

The bonds are being offered at 95½ and interest to yield 5.80 per cent.

. . . If New England is to maintain its leadership, it must have the same keen interest in its commercial and industrial life . . . that has grown up in the newer sections of our country—Howard Coonley, President Chamber of Commerce.

BOSTON AMERICAN
LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND
BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1924

Next Wednesday an article on The New England Conscience and how we can use it to help better New England's commerce, industry and living conditions.—Here is a new opportunity for the Minute Men of 1924.

Minute Men of 1924! Stop the Merry-Go-Round of Boston's Port

Make the Port of Boston Famous for Something Besides the Tea Party

Progress and prosperity for Boston spell progress and prosperity for New England.

An awakening of New England must begin with an awakening of Boston.

For Boston is the heart, the capital, the metropolis of New England.

You think of England and London flashes into your mind. You think of France and a picture of Paris arises.

So New England and America have their Boston, the birthplace of American patriotism, where liberty was cradled and where the first blood of American martyrs was spilled.

As Boston is the historical inspiration of New England and America, so it is the commercial heart of New England.

No community can flourish if its metropolis suffers from hardening of the arteries. A section of a country fails or prospers as its greatest city serves it.

Realizing that New England's prosperity depends upon Boston the question arises: What is Boston's vital asset?

There is but one answer: HER PORT.

Mention Boston harbor in London, Paris, Ohio, California—almost anywhere—and it is recognized as the spot where two hundred years ago a determined band of our forefathers registered their protest against injustice and defied the power of England.

It is known for the Boston Tea Party. It is famous for a drink, not because it has the largest dry dock or the greatest passenger and freight pier in the world.

Not because of other advantages which make it the second largest international port on the American continent and surpassed only by New York in equipment.

Why?

Is it because the twentieth century spirit is less determined than that of our tea party forebears?

Have we lost the spark needed to fire the ambition of leadership?

Why do big steamship lines ignore us?

Why do some New England exporters ship from New York instead of Boston?

Why are cargoes and immigrants landed in New York when Boston is nearer Europe by two hundred miles?

Why does the United States Shipping Board ignore Boston's port facilities?

What are its assets? What are its liabilities? What are its problems? If you are unfamiliar with our port you will be interested to learn:

FACT—The greatest passenger and freight pier and the largest dry dock in the world are in Boston.

FACT—Boston is a day's sail nearer Europe than any other large Atlantic port. The official sailing distance (figures from United States Commissioner of Navigation) by the most navigable routes, measured in nautical miles, are:

	To Liverpool	Boston's Advantage
Boston	2,820
New York	3,010	190
Philadelphia	3,160	340
Baltimore	3,324	504
New Orleans	4,553	1,733
Galveston	4,730	1,910

FACT—Boston is the logical port for Canadian business, both export and import, during the six months of the year when the traffic is heaviest and the St. Lawrence River is frozen over, making Montreal and Quebec inaccessible to shipping. Much of the Canadian business is handled through the port of Boston, but more through New York.

FACT—Boston is nearer to the Panama Canal than Pacific coast ports, despite the popular impression to the contrary. The distance from Boston to the Canal is 2,077 miles; from Los Angeles, 2,935; from San Francisco, 3,302, and from Vancouver, 4,019.

FACT—Boston has an advantage over every port along the Atlantic coast and the Gulf of Mexico in nautical miles to Rio de Janeiro. Here are the official distances:

	To Rio de Janeiro	Boston's Advantage
Boston	4,748
New York	4,778	30
Philadelphia	4,828	80
Baltimore	4,840	92
New Orleans	5,228	480
Galveston	5,344	596

FACT—Because of the Panama Canal route New England is nearer to the Pacific coast than Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago. There are five steamship lines giving regular sailings from Boston to the Pacific coast ports through the Panama Canal. One of these lines includes service from Portland and another from Providence.

FACT—Here are some rates that should appeal to shippers: Shoes, by the Panama Canal from Boston to San Francisco, $1.50 per 100 lbs.; Chicago, $3.69; Detroit, $3.76; Pittsburgh, $4.65. Cotton, from Boston by canal, 60 cents per 100 lbs.; Chicago, by rail, $1.58. Pianos, from Boston, 75 cents; Chicago, $2.50. Automobile tires, from Boston, 80 cents; Chicago, $2.50.

Nature was good to Boston harbor, but factions looking for various advantages have imposed serious handicaps.

Here are three examples:

1—A carload of grain is shipped to Boston from the West.

It is delivered to the Hoosac Tunnel Docks or the Boston & Maine Docks in the Mystic river, but its ultimate point in the port is a steamship at the Boston & Albany docks in East Boston.

To reach that steamship it must be re-routed by railroad through Revere, Chelsea and East Boston.

Sometimes these cargoes come clear through on one rate, but the above described aggravation often happens. Much of this extra cost and delay could be saved through a co-operative lighterage service.

The extra switching charge in such instances is $10 a car.

The railroad's answer to complaints is that the Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that this is a fair and reasonable charge under the circumstances.

The job of the Minute Men of 1924 is to change the circumstances.

2—Potatoes from Maine, destined for Cuba and Latin American ports, come here over the Boston & Maine Railroad for export in ships of the United Fruit Company. To reach the ship, they must be switched around from the freight yard by circuitous route to the United Fruit Company's pier, which means an extra charge of $5 per car added to the railroad transportation cost to Boston.

The Union Freight Company does this work. Its charge covers the switching to the United Fruit pier. There is another cartage charge from the pier to the steamship. Last week one steamer took away a cargo of 7,000 bags, or 28 cars. The switching charge on this one shipment alone was $140.

A lighterage service would have saved the shipper much of this charge.

3—If a shipment comes to this city by way of Providence over the New Haven Railroad, arriving at the railroad docks in South Boston and intended for a steamer sailing from the Boston & Albany docks in East Boston, that shipment must be handled over 13½ miles of railroad around through Revere, Chelsea and East Boston, to reach that steamer.

The distance across the harbor by direct water route is three-quarters of a mile. That would be the natural way to make the transfer, but the railroads do not maintain a harbor water route, do not have a lighterage service. The accompanying map is explanatory.

Business men say there is only one solution for this system of additional charges.

That is, the organization of a terminal company controlled jointly by the railroads, but operated under a separate management, which would organize and consolidate a distinct harbor transfer system composed of a sufficient number of lighters for parcel loads, together with "floaters" capable of handling trainloads of merchandise.

On a limited scale the New Haven does this in conjunction with its shipping to and from the steamers of the United Fruit Company.

It would be the sensible thing for all the railroads to expand and extend this kind of service and do away with the railroad merry-go-round routes in operation.

No wonder the observing visitor says we are sleeping.

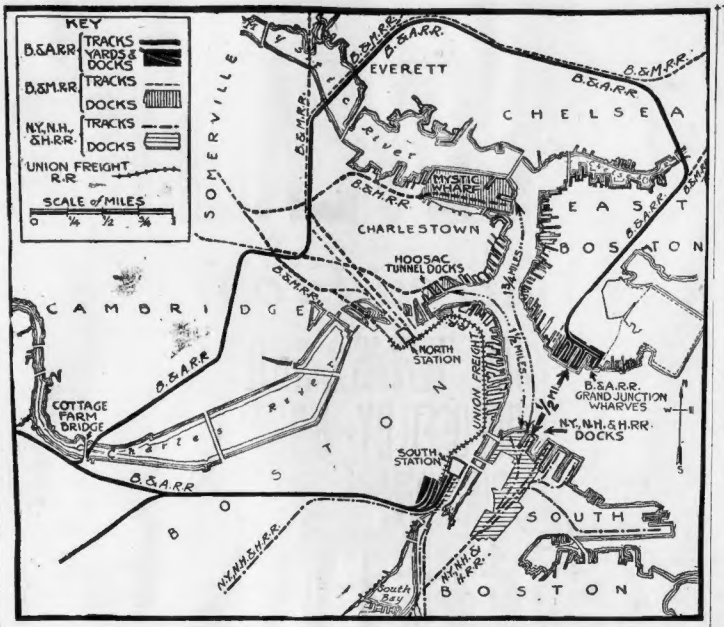
How long would New York continue her shipping leadership, without her lightering services, if patrons of her port had to depend upon such antiquated service with its resulting delays and inexcusable costs?

No lighterage system! No harbor tunnels connecting terminals! Just a port with a merry-go-round switching system!

To relieve Boston port of these handicaps is the first objective for the Minute Men of 1924.

Imbued with the Spirit of the Seventeen-seventies, the spirit that would not brook unjust taxation, they will keep up the fight until the handicaps from which Boston port suffers are removed.

Then and not till then will the invitation to favor the port be accepted in the real spirit and Boston attain her proper place among the great shipping places of the world.



The Port of Boston's Merry-Go-Round

A straight line is the shortest distance between two points. This map proves that the three railroads which enjoy a monopoly of our port business prefer circuitous routes by land to straight, short hauls by water. There are no straight-line cargo transfer routes in Boston harbor and no harbor in the world is better adapted for them. It would be practically impossible to go by water from one to another in any way but a straight line. Yet the shippers are not given the benefit of such water courses. They are obliged to put up with the system of staggering distances and costs which this map indicates. By any water transfer the distance from the New Haven docks to the Boston & Albany is three-quarters of a mile and from the Boston & Maine to the New Haven about a mile and a half. By railroad transfer, as the map shows, the haul is more than 13 miles. There is but one "floatage" transfer in the harbor, the exclusive privilege of one corporation, and the lighterage service is a joke. There is one lighter.
